Volcano Kills 51 Costa Ricans

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — Mt. Arnel volcano buried stones and great clouds of ash into Costa Rica's night skies Tuesday. The death toll from the mighty eruption rose to 51 and President Jose Joaquin Trejo declared a state of emergency.

At least 112 persons were missing, the Costa Rican National Guard said. Hundreds were injured. Thousands evacuated their homes.

The volcano 45 miles northwest of San Jose had been thought to be extinct. It had been quiet for 500 years. It erupted with a terrific roar Monday morning. The blast was followed by a hot wave of gas that cremated most of the victims who lived near the mountain.

Erupcions continued Tuesday night and the volcano spewed forth lava, rock ash and sulphurous gasses. Ash dropped as far as 60 miles away.

The little town of Puerto Nuevo—closest to the volcano

—was partially destroyed. Authorities said all its 8,447 residents who survived had fled.

The U.S. Army southern command headquarters in Panama, about 250 miles east of here, sent two helicopters, medical and food supplies and a team of medics to assist in the rescue operations.

The national guard said several thousand persons reside in scattered villages and farms in the area affected by the volcano's eruptions. In addition to the evacuations at

Pueblo Nuevo, the guard also reported evacuating 4,000 persons from the town of Arenal.

The national guard said eight families who lived near Pueblo Nuevo were missing.

Rescue workers were hampered by the clouds of gas, falling ash and, in areas closer to the volcano, flowing lava and hot, falling rocks. Rock ash covered a 450-square mile area around the volcano, the national guard reported, in some areas as much as eight inches thick.

Soviet Allies Aim Forces At Czechs

Crisis Talks Frank

CIERNA NAD TISOU (Reuters) — The Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia said Tuesday night their showdown meeting in this Slovak border city continued in an atmosphere of "comradely frankness."

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviets moved a vast three-nation military force toward Czechoslovakia's northern border Tuesday as reports from the critical Czechoslovak-Soviet summit talks gave little room for optimism.

The Soviets announced early Tuesday they were expanding their military exercises into East Germany and Poland and troops from these two hardline communist nations would join in.

STEADY MOVEMENT Sources in Poland and East Germany reported army units moving steadily south toward the Czech border where the Soviets already have considerable troop strength in position.

It was the first time the Soviets had held joint manoeuvres on allied territories, and with other national armies, outside the framework of the Warsaw Treaty.

NOT HUNGARY

It was noted here that Hungary, on Czechoslovakia's southern border, was apparently not given a role so far in the Soviet-directed show of military preparedness.

The ominous military gestures were taken seriously by western experts here.

The Soviet Communist Party has repeatedly said it would not tolerate an anti-communist Czechoslovakia. Poland, East Germany, Hungary and Bulgaria supported the Kremlin's attitude in the Warsaw letter to the liberalizing regime of Czech party leader Alexander Dubcek.

AT STAKE

At stake are both the Soviet Union's prestige as leader of an already schismatic world communist movement, and — the Soviets believe — the dependability of their forward defence perimeter.

The highly-publicized movements were moving up Soviets troops from the deep rear to positions where they could supply and reinforce the front-line combat troops.

Big Rock Drowns Two Boys

COCOA, Fla. (UPI) — Two young boys were killed Tuesday when a huge boulder crashed onto them as they swam in a small sand pit filled with water.

George Davis and Tommy Orno, both 13-year-old residents of nearby Port St. John, drowned when the six-by-three foot boulder rolled down the four-foot-high clay banks of the pit and pinned them below eight feet of water.

LOUD NOISE

"All of a sudden, there was a loud noise and I looked back just in time to see them disappear under the rocks and sand," said Eddie Reeder, 14, who was playing on the shore.

A third youth, George Copeland, 13, scrambled from the water unharmed.

Angry Grizzly Mom Chased With Whack from Fly Rod

SPOKANE (AP) — A Spokane couple told Tuesday how they fought off an enraged grizzly bear in western Montana timber land with only a fishing rod for defence.

Hubert Tauscher and his wife said they were fishing near Nixon, Mont., last week when they stumbled upon the mother grizzly's den.

Apparently fearful for her cubs, they said the roaring mother bear charged them time and again.

"It was like a nightmare that was real," Mrs. Tauscher said. She eventually climbed a tree, but Tauscher stood his ground with the fly rod.

"He whacked the grizzly over her nose with the tip of the rod," she said. "One time the bear reared up on her hind legs and roared, her fangs showing and her claws extended."

They said two almost fully grown cubs then sprang out of the bushes and the three bears retreated.

Their report follows the recent killing of at least three grizzlies in sections of Montana after the bears threatened people.

turned to Montreal from South Africa where he had attended a conference of heart transplant surgeons in Cape Town.

It was at the airport that the 42-year-old surgeon hinted Mr. Paris, who received his new heart 13 days ago, may be going home in four weeks.

The excitement mounted Monday night when Dr. Grondin re-

Tots Survive Bush Ordeal

By DAVE STOCKARD

GRAND RAPIDS, Man. (CP) — Indian trackers Tuesday night found two children who survived an astonishing ordeal of six days and five nights lost in desolate northern Manitoba bush.

Jill Sinclair, 8, and her four-year-old brother, Kirby, were alive and in apparently good condition although scratched and bitten by insects.

They were taken from this Lake Winnipeg power centre to the radar station at Gypsumville, 110 miles south on the Winnipeg-Grand Rapids highway, where doctors were to assess their condition and decide whether to transport them on to a city hospital.

BEHIND LOG

They were found huddled behind a log in the area of Buffalo Lake, 12 to 15 miles from the spot where they wandered from their parents' root-picking camp last Thursday. The group of Indian and Métis searchers who traced them were confident from the start that footprints first found Sunday would eventually lead them to the wandering tots.

Groups of army searchers, flown in earlier in the day in four plane loads, were working a different area at the time.

UNCLE OVERJOYED

"It sure was a happy moment when we found them," said Percy Jensen, an uncle of the children who was in the rescue party.

The 19 rescuers took turns carrying the children as they ran the two miles to the nearest bush trail and a waiting vehicle.

Footprints, a string of wool from Kirby's jacket and a strand of Jill's hair helped lead the keen-eyed woodsmen to their swampland resting place.

SCARED BY YELLS

"They looked up and smiled and then crawled back down again," said Jensen.

"We were all so happy we yelled and shouted and we scared them. They cried a lot and then they recognized their uncle, Saul Cook, and calmed down again."

Jensen said the parents, Mr.

Mexican Troops Battle Students

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexican troops fired volleys of shots in the air within earshot of a tourist landmark and, charging with fixed bayonets, tried to clear the city's streets Tuesday after new outbreaks of violence followed a night of student riots that authorities called communists-inspired.

Students hurried rocks and bottles at riot police and the steel-helmeted force threw them back. At least two buses were burned and other buses, their windows smashed, blocked the streets around the interior ministry building.

The rioting, which was related to charges of brutality by the city's riot police, involved mainly students, 16 to 18 years of age.

Troops patrolled the downtown area and truckloads of army troops sped to the scene of the bus burnings.

Students who commanded their buses painted slogans on them condemning the administration of President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz.

Mailmen's Pay Main Topic

OTTAWA (CP) — After more than a week of mediation talks on non-monetary issues in the postal dispute, the parties have edged back to the money question. The government offered a 15-cent increase in two stages.

Government and union representatives junched with mediator Judge Rene Lippe for two hours Tuesday afternoon, then adjourned.

They met only briefly Tuesday night and agreed to get together again around 11 a.m. today in the judge's 18th-floor hotel suite. There was no comment on the progress of the talks.

The dispute concerns a proposed contract that, under new bargaining legislation, would expire Sept. 30 this year and thus be mainly retroactive. However, there has been speculation that an agreement covering a longer period possibly could be worked out.

Postal Unions is seeking a flat

75-cent-an-hour increase over a 14-month contract for most employees, and an increase of 95 cents for its lowest-paid members. The government offered a 15-cent increase in two stages.

Although spokesmen for both the government and unions have been reluctant to divulge information on the progress of the prolonged mediation sessions—the Monday night meeting ended at 3:10 a.m. EDT Tuesday—it is known that the parties are making headway on working conditions.

Mediation in the country-wide strike, which enters its 13th day today, is known to have centred on working conditions, avoiding the key pay question.

Trudeau's Vacation Dreams Disappear Under Workload

OTTAWA (CP) — Chances of tensive meetings to square that the strike was starting to inflict hardship on individual Canadians and the time for government action was close at hand. The only plausible action in his view was a recall of Parliament.

Trudeau was within reach of Ottawa throughout his northern tour. A fast transport department jet kept close to him throughout so that he could be zipped back to Ottawa in a hurry.

Possibly, similar arrangements could be made if he were to slip away on vacation for a week or so.

Tow Truck Trick Hard on Nerves

THINK HOT: It was a scorching Monday, but the temperature was still below the simmering temper of John Foster.

Mr. Foster left his small English car outside the Fox Theatre on Quadra. It was properly parked and all legal so he was surprised to see it gone when he came back from his business.

He assumed the fatal position in one of those cramped phone booths and started calling for help.

First off he had the notion to call the police, so he did. They were quite nice about the whole thing and said they would put out one of their bulletins on the missing British car.

A very courteous policeman suggested that Mr. Foster might try some amateur sleuthing around the stores to see if anyone had observed the car's theft. (Police always "observe" — they never see.)

After scouting about, Mr. Foster learned from a barber that a tow truck had arrived and just taken the car away.

This was his cue to scuttle back into the greenhouse atmosphere of the phone box and start calling again.

After a spell of backchat with a voice at the tow company number, it said the car had been picked up because an order to that effect had been placed with the company.

A calmer voice at the tow company said they would have someone pick up the irate Englishman's owner. And in due course a car arrived, and Mr. Foster was taken to the tow company yard.

By now you have guessed it was not there. It had been moved to an Oak Bay service station. The tow company said that was what had been ordered, and they did as they were told.

Mr. Foster was taken to a service station in Oak Bay and got his car back.

Mr. Foster says that he got this explanation: A car was made to the tow company because a car not unlike his was having transmission trouble. The real car in need of a tow was on Broughton, but the driver who was to have collected it gave only vague instructions before he went away somewhere else.

The driver who got the message couldn't find an English car to fit the formula, so he cruised about a bit and found Mr. Foster's car.

It all happened between 3 p.m. and 4:30 p.m., and the weather did not help Mr. Foster's temper one little bit.

WHAT ELSE?: Other things to do, apart from missing your car, this week do not include looking at the colorful flags hanging high above the Esquimalt Sports Centre.

You may recall that last time there was a major visit by the U.S. fleet, the flags were missing. The U.S. sailors were strong suspects, but nothing was proved.

This weekend there was the visit of the Oklahoma City, with her 1,200-man crew, and the flags came down.

A voice at the sports centre said, "I was wondering about that when I came to work. But the manager says they have been taken down for cleaning." My guess is that the ship has sailed, the flags will blossom again.

SILENT SELLER: Your friend and mine, Wolfgang Mozart, may never make the best-seller list or top 20 pops, but he is selling well here.

His sleeper is the Piano Concerto No. 21 which provided the theme music for that beautiful film, "Elvira Madigan." It was in point of fact the second movement that did such wonders for the film.

The recording by Geza Anda with the Camerata Academic of the Salzburg Mozarteum is one of the best available.

Mr. Anda plays the piano and conducts at the same time, and so he deserves all the credit. What is a best-seller in this field?

A call to Jack Patriek at the Record Gallery produced the fact that he is waiting for more. He ordered 20 when the film played here, and none sold. Now all copies are gone. It is that kind of music.

Pinch of Soda Does Little To Help Any Actual Trouble

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: For many more years than I care to remember, I have watched my husband take baking soda for relief of heartburn and indigestion.

I have heard this is very harmful to your system. Is it?

If so, why? — Mrs. L.W.

An occasional pinch of soda does no harm (and usually not good) but the baking-soda habit is a hobby horse of a different color.

A normal, healthy stomach doesn't need any soda or other vigorous alkali. For good digestion, the stomach juices must be acid. Indeed, some folks (usually along in years) have digestive trouble because of having too little acid in the stomach.

Let's analyze (or try to!) the motives of folks who think they have to take a dose of soda every day or every mealtime.

One possibility is that an ulcer is the real trouble. The stomach (or, more likely, the duodenum) is irritated by over-acidity, and soda (or preferably some less harsh antacid) calms it down. This trouble, however, rarely occurs at mealtime, but sometime afterward.

Your Good Health

Another possibility: the person is a nervous type and/or swallow, eats rapidly, gulps air with his food and beverage. He takes soda for what he thinks is his " acidity." The acid of the stomach and the alkaline soda react to cause some bubbles of carbon dioxide (drop a pinch of soda in some vinegar to see it happen) and the patient then burps, with great satisfaction and says he has "got rid of that gas."

Or another type of case:

there's a durable notion that it is good for us to "take something" for our health whether we need it or not. Somebody with what is (or he thinks is) a "nervous stomach" is advised to take some soda. Soon he gets into the habit and takes it regularly although — actually — he has no idea whether it does any good or the opposite.

VICTIOUS CYCLE:

What really happens to many of these soda-addicts is that, since the body tries to keep the stomach supplied with acid, the frequent doses of soda merely make the stomach replace acid at a faster rate. The poor abused stomach doesn't know what to make of the situation and responds by further rebelling. A vicious cycle.

If there is anything really wrong with a stomach, so as to require daily medication, the trouble (nervous stomach, gastritis, ulcers, or whatever) ought to be diagnosed and treated accordingly, not just dosed endlessly with soda.

Poll Rocks Rocky*Vietnam Stand Urged by Ike

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Dwight Eisenhower, the only recent big GOP presidential winner, urged the Republicans Tuesday to adopt a bipartisan stand on Vietnam "to make clear to Hanoi America's patient determination to obtain security for the South Vietnamese."

In a statement prepared for GOP platform writers, the former president also warned against accepting a "camouflaged" surrender at the Paris peace talks. Eisenhower wrote the statement at Walter Reed Army Center in Washington where he is recuperating from a heart attack.

There have been some bickering in the temporary resolutions committee over just how far the GOP national convention should go in criticizing administration policy in Vietnam. Some members have threatened an open battle unless the platform writers represent "a break or a new trend."

NO DOUBT

But Eisenhower left no doubt that he felt Vietnam should be kept out of partisan politics. He said:

"We hope that both great political parties will make clear to Hanoi America's patient determination to obtain security for the South Vietnamese. Unless and until Hanoi is convinced of that determination, we cannot expect progress in the talks at Paris or a termination of the fighting in Vietnam."

Governor Rockefeller's forces were jolted Tuesday by a surprise setback in the polls, but they pressed ahead with plans to throw everything into denying Richard Nixon the Republican presidential nomination in early balloting.

BEAVER FRONT
"The name of the game is to stop Nixon on the first and second ballots," said one Rockefeller strategist. "We'll take help from the Devil if we can get it."

Publicly, the New York governor's supporters discounted the significance of the latest Gallup Poll, published Monday, which indicated Nixon could now defeat both major Democratic presidential contenders. Rockefeller, it was reported, ran ahead of Sen. Eugene McCarthy by a

Shadow Rule Proposed*Viet Unit Woos Cong

PARIS (UPI)—The newly-formed Alliance of National, Democratic and Peace Forces has asked the National Liberation Front to join it in creating a shadow communist government for South Vietnam, diplomatic sources from the U.S. said.

The sources said the NLF, the political arm of the Viet Cong, had not replied to the suggestion but western observers expressed belief the NLF would reject it.

Reports of the alliance proposed follow efforts by the Hanoi delegation at the Paris Vietnam war talks to dispel any impression the NLF was ready to relinquish its leading role.

U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, America's chief negotiator at the Paris talks, conferred Tuesday with Undersecretary of State Nicholas Katsenbach in preparation for Wednesday's 15th negotiating session with the North Vietnamese.

Katsenbach stopped off in Paris for two days after a trip to India. He flew back to the United States Tuesday night.

The Alliance of National, Democratic and Peace Forces in South Vietnam was formed after the communist Tet offensive in late January and February this year.

For several weeks, the North Vietnamese negotiators in Paris frequently mentioned the alliance as proof the majority of the people in South Vietnam opposed the Saigon regime and supported the communist cause.

The diplomatic sources said the alliance presented its proposal to create a provisional, insurrection "people's government" early this month.

The western observers noted that lately the Hanoi negotiators had made fewer and fewer references to the alliance, instead stressing at length the role of the NLF. The observers took this as an indication North Vietnam did not view favorably the idea of a shadow cabinet.

The sources said Hanoi felt creation of such an anti-Saigon government would force the United States even more firmly behind the Saigon regime and make any future political solution of the war more difficult.

The sources said Hanoi felt

'Realistic Response' —Then Cut Raids

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk said Tuesday that the United States cannot further curtail bombing in North Vietnam until that country makes a "realistic response" to U.S. moves for peace.

Hammering at the need for a constructive response from Hanoi, Rusk said North Vietnam had "completely rejected the notion of a ceasefire four times in one week."

He said a two-phase action could lead to halting the rest of the bombing of North Vietnam. First there would be agreement on military arrangements to be taken by both sides, and after that there could be discussions on other questions that would lead to peace in Southeast Asia.

After President Johnson ordered a major de-escalation of the bombing on March 31, Rusk said, it then was up to Hanoi to move to reduce the scale of war. But Hanoi said "no" and now some discouraged persons say the United States should take another step.

Annoyance and Worse

THE CONSENSUS seems to be that the postal strike is hitting hardest at the individual and the smaller business firms. Big corporations, and particularly those with operations widely spread throughout the country, have been able to devise methods of inter-office communication which has, as least, enabled them to carry through the vital phases of their operations.

In some cases groups of companies have developed pools whereby they can share the cost of "mail" movement via courier or other form of express.

For the small business and the individual, however, the strike has made a much deeper bite. For most the correspondence flow has ceased and what cannot be verbalized through the telephone must lie dormant until the mailmen resume activity.

The merchant whose main revenue comes by cheque via the mail is already feeling the pinch. Many bills due to be paid in mid-July or earlier, missed the mail, and the excuse to delay payment has been too simple for a great number of people.

One city businessman says that his own situation has become so acute that he will shortly be forced to call a moratorium on his own debts until the strike is over or until his own bills are being paid.

As the end of the month approaches and an entirely new set of monthly statements has to be put through the mail, the strike will take on an even greater significance, and will have a deep effect on the flow of business not to mention the inconvenience and hardship on those whose sole income comes by mail.

The fact that the Montreal postmen have agreed to handle welfare cheques is, at best, an image salvaging effort. Apart from the welfare cases there are thousands of other people with no union or association to back them and press their needs, whom the disputants are compelling to sit and suffer.

To what degree the government can tolerate the national holdup remains to be seen, but there is certainly a stage when the state as an employer of dissatisfaction groups must take positive action if it is to maintain its trust of providing good government.

Who Cares?

WHAT IS THERE about the unfolding tragedy of Biafra that stops the rest of the world from doing anything about it?

How is it that do-gooder nations such as Canada, Great Britain and the United States — normally always in the forefront of any campaign to help the less fortunate people of the world — are now apparently content to sit on the sidelines and watch a thousand children a day die starving deaths?

How is it that the Eastern bloc nations who boast that their Communist ideology is the most humanitarian of all political philosophies now turn their backs on hundreds of thousands of starving innocents?

Why is it that the dozen or more independent African republics, always ready to expend endless energy and countless words planning and threatening armed invasion of South Africa and Rhodesia for the lofty ideal of liberating their fellow Africans, now show complete indifference to the fate of a million Biafrans?

How is it that the United Nations which can so speedily call the General Assembly together to pass resolutions condemning the racial policies of South Africa and Rhodesia and willingly lend moral if not official support to terrorist activities in those countries now chooses to remain as silent as it is inactive over the Biafran situation?

And why is it that the so-called uncommitted nations of Asia, ever ready to criticize both the East and the West on matters of high principle, now refuse to say anything about the crime of genocide in Biafra? Doesn't anybody care?

Saanich Dilemma

SAANICH COUNCIL has put aside for further discussion an amendment which would transfer into the zoning bylaw from existing regulations a five-foot height limit on fences. Fences would include "closely knitted" hedges. In a garden municipality, the mayor and aldermen are on touchy ground. Their caution is well advised.

On one side there are the arguments that in some instances high fences or hedges might interfere with traffic vision, and that "spite" fences might be built to obliterate neighbors' views. On the other, the opinions have been put forward that an arbitrary maximum fence height doesn't fit in with the topography of Saanich; that it would "decimate half the beautiful gardens," as one alderman put it; that the cutting down of some hedges would be a crime, and that heights ought to be a matter for decision by the individual, not by government.

In connection with the pro-regulation case, the question must be asked: To what extent is the possible building of "spite" fences a problem? Is it a serious enough threat to warrant banning high garden walls and hedges that provide beauty and a measure of seclusion, to the mutual enjoyment of neighbors?

This seems extremely doubtful, and in any event for the person intent on expressing his spite there are always other ways of going about it. Perhaps the best idea would be for Saanich council to drop the general fence and hedge regulation for an experimental period and see the results.

In the particular instance of obstruction of traffic vision, however, there is something to be said for the prohibition of high fences or dense shrubbery at the corners of intersections. Even so, a five-foot limit would be of no benefit to a driver seated in an automobile, and the blanket regulation would fall on this score.

Flashy Splash

FROM CIRENCESTER, England, comes the news that British archaeologists have launched a campaign to save an 1,800-year-old, 20-square-foot mosaic floor from being sold to Hollywood movie actress Elizabeth Taylor.

The Roman antiquity was found by American expatriate Walter Yearick under his garden and he believes Miss Taylor will buy it because "she might like something like this in her swimming pool."

And then all she would need is Hadrian's Wall for a surround.

The Soviet Combination

Sweet Talk and Harsh Language

By RUTHVEN E. LIBBY

PERHAPS it is an elaboration of their familiar carrot-and-stick technique or perhaps it is merely that Russians are too inscrutable to be comprehended by the Occidental mind, but the current behavior of the Kremlin leaders is unusually difficult to rationalize.

They sign the nuclear non-proliferation treaty. They agree to talk about limiting and reducing offensive nuclear weapons delivery systems and missile defense systems. They join in establishing Moscow-New York airline service, and even express willingness to discuss an arm embargo in the Middle East. In sum, they behave as if they had decided to adopt a policy of limited co-operation with the United States — but, nevertheless co-operation.

On the other hand, they announce that military aid to North Vietnam will be sharply increased. They direct East German Walter Ulbricht to impose a semi-blockade on West Berlin. They harass the U.S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean and declare flatly, "The time has come to demand the complete withdrawal of the U.S. Sixth Fleet from the Mediterranean." They also build up their own Mediterranean fleet to substantial and steadily increasing strength, move steadily to solidify their grip on the Arabian peninsula with its two-thirds of the world's oil and make overtures to the Maltese.

Malta, independent for the last three years, is in almost desperate economic straits. Its naval dockyard, the largest in the Mediterranean, is starving for work.

The Soviets have requested a visit by a naval squadron, and apparently have offered economic aid as a quid pro quo for making Malta a regular port of call for ships of their Mediterranean fleet, or even making it a Soviet naval base.

Gorton has been prime minister only six months and is finding the going hard. Already he is hearing vociferous criticism from political commentaries and hearing rumbles of discontent in his public service. In all cases the critics accuse him of being unable or unwilling to make decisions.

But the Gorton image with the voters is still considered high. If he has made no decisions yet he has also made no mistakes.

But within the next few months he will have to make some major decisions, particularly on Australia's defence position.

Defence is the major preoccupation of the Australian government. It was Gorton's main be neutralized by bigger and better offensive missiles.

Or it may be that the spiraling cost of these weapon systems worries the Kremlin as much as it does the United States. The cost of a full-scale antimissile system (estimated in the U.S. case as anywhere from $20-$40 billion) would make it almost impossible for them to respond to the mounting demands of the Russian citizenry for consumer goods.

With reluctance to cost, the Wall Street Journal recently editorialized:

"The fact is that the arms race is getting entirely too costly for comfort. At the rate it is going, U.S. officials figure that defense spending will go down hardy at all after the end of the Vietnam war. It may well go up . . . There is apparently no limit to the devices the two sides can compete in — military spacecraft of the future, for example.

"It is not only the cost that is disturbing. An even more widespread, more complicated weapon competition could bring us something unpleasantly close to a genuine stalemate.

"That is, the demands of the military could grow so heavy as to dwarf everything else, and the only choice would seem to be the regeneration of industry and individuals."

It would indeed be nice if we could look forward with confidence to some easing of the arms burden. But if this does come about, it will not represent any change in the Soviet objective of world domination, but merely a change in their strategy for achieving it.

Prime Minister Gorton

Big Decisions Ahead

By VINCENT MATTHEWS from Melbourne

PRIME Minister John Gorton personifies the conservative elements in Australian society. His recent visit to Southeast Asia strengthened his hard-line feelings on Communism, China and Vietnam. He is, for example, on Vietnam, one of the few national leaders to go on public record these days as saying the military victory is possible.

He is strongly against any United States de-escalation and skeptical of the Paris talks. He told Australian troops in Vietnam that the Paris talks are not peace talks, only preliminary talks, and not to pay too much attention to them. He dismissed placard-carrying war protesters as "nuts" and said 90 per cent of Australians were behind Australian troops in Vietnam in their determination to "finish the job."

Paramount consideration will be the cost problem.

In a talk to Canberra journalists Gorton announced that Australia's spending on defence in the coming year would rise by $132,000,000 to a record $1,250,000,000. And $400,000,000 of that sum will be spent maintaining Australian troops overseas.

Australia has 8,000 troops in Vietnam plus a squadron of Canberra bombers and a naval cruiser which has been supporting American naval forces off North Vietnam. Except for the two world wars, Australia has never had so many of its armed forces overseas.

Later this year Australia will take delivery from the United States of 24 F-111 fighters. The cost $265,000,000 — is nearly $150,000,000 more than the original estimate when they were ordered by former Prime Minister Sir Robert Menzies in 1962 at the height of Indonesia's confrontation with Malaysia. Gorton recently told an interviewer he had his doubts about the F-111 and he had no need to buy them but he wasn't prepared to cancel the order.

Adding to the defence bill in the coming year will be the delivery of other military equipment ordered from the U.S.

* * *

All this could put a strain on the Australian budget. Treasurer William McMahon warned state premiers at their annual conference in Canberra that there are signs of inflation in the economy and that public spending must be controlled.

The government is under pressure to increase old age pensions and other social service benefits in the next national budget. Gorton has said he believes this can be done and the defence bill met by an increase in the country's gross national product. There need be no tax increases.

There is an important reason for Gorton to keep the economy steady: an election in November, a year ahead of schedule, is a possibility. So he is more than anxious to present a voter-pleasing budget.

Democratic Nomination

Eugene McCarthy's Improving Chance

By ANTHONY WARD from Washington

CAN McCarthy win? A week ago, that was considered here the kind of question which only naive foreign journalists asked. The Democratic nomination for the presidency, all the domestic experts insisted, was just as firmly locked up for Hubert Humphrey as the Republican one was for Richard Nixon.

No dramatic political upheaval has since occurred to change that situation. No great block of delegates has defected to McCarthy, no glittering personal endorsements have come his way, no break has come in the ranks of the old Kennedy followers (some of whom took the curious course recently of rallying under the banner of a third, almost unknown, candidate, Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota).

But at the same time men who always before have been comfortably confident of a predictable outcome to his year's Democratic convention have suddenly begun to hedge their bets. The other day Sen. Robert Kennedy's own former press secretary said that he was now convinced that Gene McCarthy was going to "take" Hubert Humphrey — "And if he can do it, he knows anyone must be able to."

As the tone of that remark suggests there is still a notable lack of enthusiasm for the Minnesota senator among those who have lived their lives and made their careers in tough professional politics. To the tollers in the party vineyard Eugene McCarthy remains a suspect maverick figure — a loner who is seen as a threat to the Republic, even a danger to democracy as the "pros" have always understood it.

If the party regulars are finally forced to hand the nomination to him they will do it grudgingly and with a bad grace. But at least slowly and reluctantly some of them are coming to recognize that in the end that may turn out to be the only choice they talk.

They may believe that President Johnson's eagerness to play the role of peacemaker before retiring from the White House will enable them to make further disintegration of the bloc.

In any case, Kosygin and Brezhnev are probably quite confident that nothing concrete will emerge from talks with the United States on substantive matters for years anyway. Thus, they can make the other be neutralized by bigger and better offensive missiles.

Or it may be that the genuineness or sincerity of the Soviet offer to discuss reduction of nuclear weapon systems, only one thing can be said with certainty: They made the offer because they believe it in their own interests to talk.

They may believe that President Johnson's eagerness to play the role of peacemaker before retiring from the White House will enable them to make further disintegration of the bloc.

With reluctance to cost, the Wall Street Journal recently editorialized:

Another Revolt

Activist Teachers

From The Leader-Post, Regina

COLLEGE student riots have been given a great deal of publicity, but the current revolt of activist college and university teachers in the United States has received little notice.

Says Maybew:

"The faculty quite properly should have control over the curriculum, its own membership and the conditions of student entrance and exit."

The university president "should not be able to decree a new program, for that is the concern of the faculty, but he should be able to determine whether or not it will be financed . . ."

"As a general rule, no administrator should have the right to assess guilt or assign punishment . . ."

"The campus judicial body should be elected from faculty, students and administration, but officers charged with (regulating) conduct should be barred from membership and even presence during deliberations."

"This movement seemingly is a desire to take from the university and college and their role that many schools play in developing patriotism, one system of standards . . . and one religious stance . . . Individual teachers would inevitably take on this guidance — be relatively free from their own personal concepts in these fields."

"Because of the significant changes these teachers want, careful study should be given to one of their spokesmen, Dr. Lewis B. Maybew, professor of education at Stanford University such practices."

There is a danger that adoption of these concepts could lead to a self-perpetuating faculty with considerable authority but limited responsibility. And if a student sleeps all day and drinks all night, why should he be regarded as a

Postal Strike Spotlights Wider Issues

By PAUL DUNN

From Ottawa
Behind the country's postal strike are issues of far broader significance than the temporary curtailment of mail service, disruptive as it may be.

Some of the issues being thrown into sharp focus include:

- Should public employees have the right to strike?
- Should labor demands on the public service be treated in the same manner as those in private industry?
- Just how far should the federal government go in its "good employers" stance?

The public service Staff Relations Act, enacted early in 1967, gave for the first time to some 200,000 federal employees the right to strike.

All employees — except those in essential and managerial positions — can choose between conciliation, with possible strikes, and compulsory arbitration.

The government expected that most federal employees would choose the arbitration route. And they did.

The 115,000-member Public Service Alliance of Canada, biggest bargaining agent in the federal public service, has yet to have a component choose the strike route.

But the 24,000-member Council of Postal Unions quickly took the right to strike and at 5 a.m. EDT July 18, it exercised that option.

Federal dockyard workers, printers and air traffic controllers, totalling a few thousand employees, also have chosen the strike option. All but the controllers have signed first contracts without strikes. The controllers are seeking a conciliation board and are understood to be relatively close to a peaceful settlement.

But as the postal strike plows on, the government may be having some second thoughts about collective bargaining.

He noted that the government, unlike private employers, has almost unlimited resources to meet wage and other demands by its employees through its power to impose taxes.

The union in the private sector can check a company's balance sheet and gauge its demands accordingly.

However, governments are reluctant to raise taxes for any reason, and to raise them simply to meet demands by public servants may be one of the least attractive reasons politically.

Making 19th Century Faith Relevant to Modern World

Updating Real Crisis of Communism

By JOSEPH KRAFT, from Washington

To move around Eastern Europe as I have just done is to become aware of a crisis in Communism that far transcends the war of nerves now going on between Moscow and Prague.

The hard thing for the communists is not sorting out national rivalries. That, by the standards of the past, is something they in fact do very well.

The hard thing for the Communists is to make a 19th century revolutionary faith relevant to the modern world.

members to hold individual views.

Schaff's students were among those who set off anti-Soviet demonstrations in Warsaw in March. And in the reaction which followed, Schaff was severely attacked and obliged to resign as a director of the Polish Academy of Sciences.

But he seems to retain his membership in the party's Central Committee. He defended himself at the meeting of that group in Warsaw early this month and his defense was even published in the party newspaper, Trybuna Ludu.

Then there is the case of Professor Ota Sik of Czechoslovakia. As the chief exponent of economic reform, Professor Sik has been calling for years for more wage and price incentives, in order to direct resources to more efficient plants. Last spring, in the reform wave that hit Prague, Sik became deputy premier.

But in trying to push his ideas across, he has encountered entrenched resistance. Workers, relatively pleased with their present conditions, are not eager to take on a system that pushes for harder work — no matter what the rewards.

In history these qualities have been turned to both good and evil purposes, says the anthropologist whose best-selling book traces the animal characteristics man has inherited from his prehistoric ancestors. He believes both Jesus Christ and Adolf Hitler possessed them.

Morris, who has retreated to a 22-room Roman villa to write his next book, defines these qualities as a certain presence accompanied by the power of leading men.

As a result, Sik has had to take to the airwaves, trying to explain his views in a series of TV addresses to the public. Through these talks, there runs a strain of pessimism.

At the end of his first talk, Sik said: "Time will be required to make all the new measures work." And in his final talk this month, he concluded: "The first steps in this direction are now being taken, but it will take some time to put production on an effective basis."

What both of these cases suggest is that the most sophisticated products of the communist world are more and more putting forth demands that the communist system can neither meet nor suppress.

In these demands lies the true crisis of communism, and that crisis should be the chief guideline for the United States as it faces the communist world.

For it is plain that the crisis of communism has not been brought about by military pressures building up in confrontations around Berlin and Vietnam.

On the contrary, it is the easing of external tensions, the slackening of pressure from the outside, which has fostered the rise in expectation that is everywhere putting the communist system under increasing strain.

Special 'Animal Qualities'

Trudeau Good 'Ape'

By DESMOND MORRIS

Dr. Desmond Morris, author of The Naked Ape, says

Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau shares with the late president John F. Kennedy special "animal qualities" that give a politician the power of leading men.

right behavior and mannerisms through communication.

"It's behavior in such a way that it makes people react," he said.

"It's a matter of gesture, posture and expression — how a hand is used, how the head is moved and even how a man walks."

"Two men can both say something intellectually brilliant but the way one man says it can be totally different from the other. It's the way it is put across, the sounds, phrasing and tone of voice."

"A leader with animal qualities has a certain frightening quality. It charms people up, but it is good because people know that this leader is on their side."

"Trudeau has this. He stimulates people and makes them feel good but yet you occasionally feel an element of threat in his behavior."

"He doesn't take any nonsense. If someone says something that he doesn't like or agrees with, he gives it to them straight between the eyes."

"The late president Kennedy had the same animal qualities too. They just seem to be the right kind of animals. A man has to have a brilliant intellect to be a leader today but even that isn't enough. He has to have something extra."

Morris had never heard of Trudeau until he visited Canada in February and saw him on television.

"I was completely fascinated by his personality. For politics, he had the right kind of animal form."

Morris said Canadian politicians had seemed to him "gentle and lumbering" until Trudeau hit the scene.

"Trudeau is reacting all the time — he is a force to be reckoned with. I think he has the best chance to unify the French and I'm rash enough to predict that he will make Canada a major force."

After McCarthy, the candidate who attracted most life-lovers was Governor Rockefeller of New York (46 per cent). Interestingly, Sen. Robert Kennedy (the poll was taken before his assassination), showed up relatively poorly among life-lovers.

MacCoby does not find the Kennedy figures surprising: many Kennedy supporters, he argues, were attracted by the thrill and glamour of the campaign, they wanted to be "juiced up" by the politics of excitement, an essentially anti-life phenomenon.

There is some external evidence for this: despite the closeness of Kennedy and McCarthy on particular issues, many Kennedy supporters and aides have either gone over to Humphrey or dropped out of politics rather than line up with the only remaining "peace" candidate.

On specific issues, MacCoby found a wide divergence between the pro and anti-life perspectives. Life-lovers were won over strongly for McCarthy for president, more effort to end poverty in America, stopping the killing in Vietnam, aiding progress in underdeveloped countries and securing a guaranteed income for every American.

The anti-lifers, in contrast, placed most emphasis on: tighter control of rioters, tighter enforcement of anti-drug laws, winning the war in Vietnam, strengthening the police, Richard Nixon for president, and fighting communism through the world.

MacCoby's survey report claims to have uncovered "the real conflict in the country between those who are essentially in favor of peace, tolerance and reason against those in the grip of racism who lean to the use of force and war as the best solution to all conflicts."

And McCarthy's appeal is seen as an "catalyzing a new coalition" based not on economic interests and ideologies, but on basic attitude to life.

The implications for the polling fraternity at large have yet to be explored. But MacCoby sees it as an escape route from the fieldlessness of opinion polling.

"Conviction polling," he argues, would give the politician a longer perspective. "He could find out the hidden issues that can be articulated, given the right approach, rather than a series of snap, often unconsidered judgments on the issues of the day."

Humphrey, Nixon Supporters Necrophiles

Biophiles Back McCarthy

By LEWIS CHESTER, from Los Angeles

Social scientists have long been aware that the proper study of mankind is man, but the problem has always been how to pin him down and put him in tidy categories. Are we numbered among the sheep or goats, the exploiters or exploited, the supermen or the psychological serfs? We may be one or more of these, but they are not, apparently, the crucial classifications of our time.

The latest great divide in the species is between those who love life and those who feel an attraction for what is unreal, dead or mechanical. Or to use a brutal shorthand: the biophiles and the necrophiles.

This, at any rate, is the hypothesis of Dr. Michael MacCoby, a young sociologist at the University of California, and one that he feels is particularly relevant to this year's American presidential election.

Dr. MacCoby has just completed an unpublished study — "polling emotional attitudes in relation to political choices" — which he claims, bears out his academic hunch. (His research mentor was Professor Ehrlich Fromm, the author of a famous study in 1934 which established that while only a minority of the German working-class had authoritarian attitudes, the percentage of those with democratic anti-Nazi attitudes was much smaller.)

Most of us, Dr. MacCoby concedes, have an admixture of "pro" and "con" life attitudes in our make-up, but our fundamental predilections can, he argues, be ascertained. To do this, he and Fromm constructed a questionnaire that can elicit a score on the love of life v. anti-life continuum.

To splice the study, all the respondents to the questionnaire (a random sample of 160 people living in Santa Cruz, Calif.) were asked to nominate their favorite presidential candidate and choose three issues, from a standard list, that they considered of overwhelming importance.

The findings go some way to explaining the hyperthyroid exuberance of the campaign for Sen. Eugene McCarthy which has caused the Democratic Party bosses such anguish this year. No less than 77 per cent of the McCarthy supporters fell in the "love of life" category.

In contrast, 76 per cent of Vice-President Humphrey's followers were clustered in the "anti-life" camp — a poorer showing than even the liberals' traditional bête noir, Sen. Richard Nixon, 27 per cent of whose sample was deemed life-loving.

Package Worth 90 Cents Averts Steel Shutdown

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The United Steelworkers Union Tuesday accepted a new three-year wage package estimated at about 90 cents an hour to end the threat of a U.S.-wide steel strike.

It was the largest package won by the union since it was organized in 1937.

An industry source said value of the new contract may exceed 18 per cent over the life of the past — or slightly more than 6 per cent a year. Average hourly pay in the old contract was $3.71.

The companies said earlier that such a settlement "would wipe out two thirds of the industry's profits" and bankrupt some producers.

Approval of the new contract by the union's top two policy-making bodies came only hours before the 11 major steel producers prepared to close their mills across the United States and Canada in preparation for a work stoppage at midnight Wednesday by 400,000 union members.

The pact provided 40 cents in "hard money" for the pay-cheques — 20 cents the first year, 12 the second and 12 the third — in addition to wide improvements in fringe benefits.

These included improvements in pensions, vacation pay, shift differentials, insurance benefits, supplemental unemployment benefits, medical payments and creation of a committee to work on an incentive program to be implemented by Aug. 1, 1969.

The incentive issue was a sore point with many rank-and-file steelworkers on grounds the current plan had too many inequities.

The contract did not call for a cost of living clause, a point some local USW presidents said told their officers to strive for.

NOT ALL HAPPY

Some of the 60 local USW presidents, who make up the basic steel industry conference which gave final approval to the contract, expressed dissatisfaction.

In its 31-year history, the union has called eight strikes against the steel industry. The most recent one — and the longest — was the 116-day walkout of 1960 and 1961. That strike was interrupted by an 80-day cooling-off period after the 1960 cooling-off period in the Eisenhower administration.

Bechtel employees now must join the union within seven days of starting work. Laberge said there is nothing in the labor code against this practice.

Popia said workers should be represented by the union of their choice.

White Heads Board

Vancouver Magistrate Cyril White will succeed J. E. Eades as chairman of the B.C. Workmen's Compensation Board Oct. 1.

The announcement was made Tuesday by Labor Minister Leslie Petrone, who paid tribute to Mr. Eades' 13 years on the board.

Mr. White was appointed vice-chairman of the board earlier this year.

MAJOR REVISIONS

A secondary offering of shares of International Nickel of Canada is being made on the U.S. market by two New York underwriting houses.

It consists of 116,000 common shares at 39 1/2 (U.S.). The price is for the undivided plant, which now is trading in its 24-to-one split form on the Canadian exchanges, but not in the U.S.

After the war he entered law school at the University of B.C. and was called to the bar in 1949. He was appointed to the bench in 1962.

He will take over as the board continues to submit to major revisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act passed by the legislature this spring.

He was educated in Vancouver and taught in public schools before joining the armed forces in the Second World War.

He has been a member of the Canadian Bar Association since 1949 and was elected to the bar in 1949. He was appointed to the bench in 1962.

Production of safety fuses would begin early in 1969, the statement said.

The plant would be operated by Canadian Explosives Ltd., of Vancouver, a company affiliated with Canadian Safety Fuse Co. Ltd., whose parent company is Canadian Industries Ltd., of Montreal.

Mr. Bennett said Mr. Skillings said the decision to go ahead with construction of the plant was announced by George Veille, President of Canadian Explosives Ltd.

Tenants Form Own Union To Bargain with Landlord

WINNIPEG (CP) — Seventy residents of a high-rise apartment building, dissatisfied with leases they claim favor the landlord, formed a union Monday to bargain collectively with the apartment management.

Organizer Joseph Babineau said the union was formed in the Nishnaw Park Plaza apartment to get equal rights for tenants with management.

He said the leases do not demand that management correct flooding in the building or repair the heat if it is turned off.

"According to the terms of the leases we don't have to," Babineau said, although the management usually does.

Meeting in the basement of the apartment building, the tenants were told the leases provided dozens of provisions for the landlord but nothing for the tenants.

They paid $2 each for membership in the union and handed over their unsigned leases to union organizers.

"If we had a proper lease right now we'd have air conditioning, soundproofing, a recreation room in the basement and a large swimming pool," Babineau said. He also complained tenants received only verbal promises that rent would not increase.

Jobs for 40

Interior Getting Big Plant

A Montreal firm will build a new fuse plant in the British Columbia interior, it was announced here Tuesday.

In a joint announcement, Premier Bennett and Waldo Skillings, minister of industrial development, said that a plant employing 40 persons will be built on a 700-acre site near Tappan, 12 miles south of Salmon Arm.

Production of safety fuses would begin early in 1969, the statement said.

The plant would be operated by Canadian Explosives Ltd., of Vancouver, a company affiliated with Canadian Safety Fuse Co. Ltd., whose parent company is Canadian Industries Ltd., of Montreal.

Mr. Bennett said Mr. Skillings said the decision to go ahead with construction of the plant was announced by George Veille, President of Canadian Explosives Ltd.

How to Wreck Lawns

By M. V. CHESNUT

It is quite possible for two lawns to start out with exactly the same preparation of the soil, the same grass seed, the same fertilizer and the same watering, and wind up very differently. One may become a lovely sward of verdant, healthy grass, while the other may turn out thin and patchy and full of weeds, all because of the manner in which the mowing is performed.

Good mowing, it is true, cannot make a good lawn out of a bad or poorly prepared one, but it can keep it from getting any worse. On the other hand, bad mowing can ruin the finest lawn.

* * *

Just about the worst policy you can follow is to keep putting off the chore of mowing the grass until the lawn begins to resemble a hayfield, then give it a real close shave, whittling it right down to the roots in the hope of postponing the evil day when you have to mow it again. This technique is guaranteed to wreck even a good lawn in the course of a single season.

Cutting the grass, like pruning a tree, is a surgical operation. You cannot mow at all without mutilating the grass plant to some extent, and the more you cut away, the more serious is the operation, and the patient will recover that much more slowly.

As I say, mowing alone will never make a good lawn out of one which was sown hastily on poorly prepared ground, but a good technique in mowing will foster the growth of the finer lawn grasses and will help control the worst of the weeds. The whole idea must be to weaken the lawn grasses as little as possible, and the main points to be observed are the height of the cut and the frequency of mowing.

* * *

If you mow closely, you are reducing the area of leaf surface — and remember, leaves are food factories, powered by sunlight, in which food is manufactured for the roots. The fertilizer you put down is only the raw materials to supply these factories and of no value at all until it is converted within the leaves.

When you mow closely, you are exposing the roots to the sun, for ordinarily the grass provides a little shade for its own roots. You will also admit moss, skim bare patches, and create a wonderful seed bed for every wandering seed that blows in.

I like to adjust my mower so it is cutting about  $1\frac{1}{2}$  inches off the ground, just tipping the grass. This leaves a much thicker stand, more leaf surface to act as food factories, more shade for the roots, and weed seeds have much less chance of reaching the soil surface and find it harder to get themselves established against the competition of the vigorous grasses.

I am a great believer, too, in twice-a-week mowing rather than the usual week-end chore — at least, while the grass is in active growth. With only three days of growth on the grass, the mower removes only the leaf tips — minor surgery, with no great shock to the patient.

Moreover, because the mowings are very fine and short, you can mow without a grass catcher or without raking up after mowing. The fine tips can be left on to mulch the roots and build soil fertility.

This combination of high mowing and frequent mowing produces a lawn which may look a little shaggy to an eye accustomed to a putting green, but one that resists moss and weed invasion; one that remains green through our summer dry spells, and one that becomes soft and springy underfoot.

Finally, don't be a one-way mower. Follow a different mowing pattern each time you mow, hitting it from a different direction — crosswise, lengthwise, diagonally.

Coups: Can't Win 'em All

BAGHDAD — Ahmed Hassan El Bakr, 52, a retired general who was chosen as president of Iraq by a group of young nationalists officers that staged a coup two weeks ago, has thrown two of their leaders out of the cabinet in a coup of his own.

Premier Col. Abdul Razak El Nafir and Defence Minister Col. Ibrahim Daus were pensioned off and exiled for plotting to bring "reactionary elements" into the cabinet. They follow former president Abdul Rahman Aref, the victim of their July 17 coup.

El Bakr's move, which gave him the job of the ousted pair, puts Iraq firmly under the control of the moderate wing of his Arab Socialist Ba'th party.

LITTLE ROCK — Arkansas Democratic Senator J. William Fulbright, won party renomination for his U.S. Senate seat by defeating three opponents in a primary vote.

RIO DE JANEIRO — The Brazilian government began an attack on its increasingly outspoken opposition by confining former president Janio Quadros to an interior camp for 120 days. He was accused of repeatedly violating a decree of silence on political subjects.

HOLLYWOOD — The 25-year marriage of actress Jane Russell, 47, and former football star Bob Waterfield, 48, was dissolved on grounds of mental cruelty.

The Clarity of Youth

SYDNEY HARRIS

Everyone knows that children can see what adults are blind to, for adults have blinded themselves to reality.

We accept the conventional and call it "real"; while children, who know little of conventionalities, are less deluded by superstitions.

* * *

Some time ago, we were driving in from the suburbs on the expressway, and turned into a particularly elaborate and complex cloverleaf system of roads. There was a sign reading: "Your tax money is going for these highway improvements."

Beyond the sign there was a high chain fence. Just beyond the fence, we could see the golden glint of the city's suns. As we passed, my 13-year-old boy turned to me and said: "Isn't that a laugh? All this money for cars, and nothing for people."

Of course, he was right. With the clarity of youth, he observed the contrast between the billions we cheerfully spend for vehicular improvements, and the grudging millions we dole out for human improvement.

* * *

Children are more truly "practical" than was, also—for they have no vested interest in the practices of the past and present, no need to defend their mistakes, their callousness, their neglect. It is a simple matter of justice to them; to us, it involves an irksome reassessment of our priorities—and an admission of our guilt.

What good are all these highways if people use them mostly to flee the city (as they do), leaving it to rot and burn and decay?

Where can we go with our cars when the whole country is becoming urbanized in the ugliest possible way?

What value have these miracles of engineering, when the same amount spent on rehabilitating the slums might make a city livable, and joyous, and safe?

People should come before machines and roads and all inanimate objects. "The Sabbath is made for man, and not man for the Sabbath." Our modern Sabbath, our modern worship, is the Thing; but if it is not soon made for man, man will destroy it, and himself in the process.

World Will Recall Bobby When Hates Put Aside

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a out of government is to keep the senator had "walked the streets fabric of our society whole."

"This is the best tribute we can make to Robert Francis Kennedy," he declared. Sen. Fred Harris (D-Oklahoma) who campaigned against Kennedy for president on behalf of Vice-President Humphrey, hailed Kennedy as a man "driven with a sense of great urgency to fight for unpopular causes."

He recalled that the dead said: "We must somehow acquire the resolution to serve this country with the courage that marked the acts of Robert Kennedy."

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff (D-Conn.) commented: "Perhaps the best measure of the man is that millions in the world feel a personal loss just as we who knew him well."

Sen. Frank Church (D-Idaho)

said: "He took on the fight of the minorities as his own." Harris said.

Sen. Walter Mondale (D-Minn.) who also backed Humphrey against Kennedy, said that words are an abstraction: "They cannot capture, they cannot eulogize a man in life so real, so vital, as a part of the times he lived."

The speaker was Sen. Samuel Ervin (D-N.C.). The colleague he mourned was the late Robert Kennedy.

Senators of both parties set aside political partisanship Tuesday to pay final tribute to the slain New York senator in a special observance traditionally held for dead members.

RICH REWARD

Ervin, who had fought fierce legislative battles with Kennedy, went on to say: "Though his time on this earth was short, Robert Kennedy found a rich reward in fulfillment as a human being."

Sen. Eugene McCarthy (D-Minn.), Kennedy's main antagonist in the presidential primaries, was almost inaudible as he spoke.

McCarthy said of his dead political rival: "He was the most worthy advocate—dedicate, energetic—committing all his strength to the end of achieving the objectives which he had concluded were for the good of this country."

NONE FROM FAMILY

They were two of a number of senators to speak feelingly of the assassinated Kennedy. Kennedy's desk was starkly unadorned at the rear of the chamber.

Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.) was not present for the eulogies to his brother. He has not attended any sessions since the murder in Los Angeles. Neither were any other members of the Kennedy family in evidence in the partly filled galleries.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield led off the tributes with these words: "People will remember Robert Francis Kennedy when the children in this land play together and then work and live together in a new national unity forged of an equal decency and dignity for all."

NEW DEDICATION

"People will remember Robert Francis Kennedy when there is an end of Vietnams, when nations at last put aside the ancient hates and suffocating hostilities in a new dedication to the building of a more rational and responsible world order."

Kennedy's Republican colleague from New York, Sen. Jacob Javits, spoke of his "twin passions of sympathy and dignity." He described the dead senator as "a flaming symbol of hope and idealism" who had the deepest concern for the underdog of anyone I ever met."

Sen. Thomas Kuchel (R-Calif.) said that "one of the most urgent tasks of men in and

Bookstore Bargain $2 for 25 Girls

NEW YORK (AP) — Some girls who placed their dreams of romance in the tender hands of a computer were betrayed when their phone numbers were sold in Times Square bookstores, says Attorney-General Louis Lefkowitz.

Lefkowitz filed a complaint in State Supreme Court Monday, alleging that George Zieckas was a computer-age cupid, subscribing to computer dating services and then making up lists from the potential dates offered to him.

Zieckas would list 25 girls and their phone numbers, Lefkowitz said, and then sell mimeographed copies to bookstores for 50 cents each. The stores then resold them for $2, advertising "Girls galore . . . just a phone call guarantees a date."

The 25 unsuspecting girls, waiting for their perfect man, found instead that they were called at all hours of the night and offered less conventional forms of entertainment than they sought.

Lefkowitz seeks an injunction to prevent Zieckas from his match-making.

Colliery Blaze Kills Six

TOKYO (Reuters) — Fire roared through a Japanese coal mine Tuesday, killing at least six miners and leaving 22 other missing with little hope of being found alive.

The fire broke out during an overnight shift and blazed for four hours some 7,500 feet underground at Heiwa colliery in Yubari City on the main northern Japanese island of Hokkaido.

Banks, a U.S. citizen, is former head of the Canadian section of the Seafarers International Union. He fled to the United States after his 1964 conviction and sentence to five years' imprisonment in Montreal on a charge of conspiracy to assist in the 1967 beating of a rival union leader.

Perjury is an extraditable offence but conspiracy to assault is not under the extradition agreement between the United States and Canada.

GUILT DENIED

In defending his decision, which was contrary to the recommendations of his legal adviser and a U.S. commissioner before whom a lengthy extradition hearing was held in 1967, Banks told a news conference: "I had to make the important decision whether a man is extraditable on the ground that he denied guilt on a non-extraditable offence."

Year's First Hail Flattens Wheat

LETHBRIDGE (CP)—The first major hail storm to hit southern Alberta this year damaged 200,000 acres of spring and winter wheat between Lethbridge and Warner Monday. "It's mostly a complete loss," said J. M. McKay of the Alberta Hail Board.

About 300 farmers were affected in the 300-square-mile area. Farmers reported the storm lasted from 20 to 30 minutes and hail stones ranged in size from golf balls to eggs. The stones broke windows and bared most trees.

"Some farmers even report the hail breaking tree branches," McKay said.

Officer's Arm Seized, Man Flees

One of two men fighting July 23 in the Trafalgar branch of the Royal Canadian Legion and slipped away from police when Peter Wakeman grabbed the arm of a city constable, Central Magistrate's Court was told Tuesday.

Wakeman, 23, of 1242 Fairholme, pleaded guilty to obstructing Constable David Glancy and to wilfully causing damage. He was fined $350 on the first charge and $25 on the second.

Constable Glancy said he and Constable Albert Wells broke up a fight at the Trafalgar branch between two men.

While he was holding one of them, Wakeman grabbed his right arm, forcing him to lose his grip. He said he warned Wakeman to stay away. Constable Glancy said he grabbed the other person again but Wakeman caused him to lose his grip a second time and a fight broke out between Wakeman and two other men.

Some beer glasses were broken and tables overturned in the fight.

During this struggle, the man that Constable Glancy had been holding slipped away and has not been apprehended by police, court was told.

"DEGUSTING!"

Prosecutor John MacIntyre said: "It was a disgusting exhibition. It is very unfortunate that young men, instead of helping police, take it upon themselves to interfere."

Magistrate William Ostler said: "It is perfectly disgusting that the police in this area and in other parts of the province are called out to maintain law and order and, instead of helping them, people interfere."

Clifford Jago, 34, of 967 North Park, was remanded to Aug. 7 for a pre-sentence report and sentence on a charge of threatening.

The charge read that he conveyed, by word of mouth, that he intended to cause the death of Edward Ryehill.

Constable Arthur Cooper said he broke up a fight Monday afternoon at Jago's home between Jago and Ryehill.

He said Jago said: "Let me go and I'll kill that bastard."

Victoria IWA 9-1 For Acceptance

Victoria's 1,800-member IWA local has voted overwhelmingly in favor of the new Coast Woods contract—by a whopping 88 per cent. This is the highest percentage yet received.

Most locals on the Island, the Coast Mainland, and the Queen Charlottes, have nearly completed the vote. The official result will be known this afternoon.

Joe Fowler, business agent of the Victoria local—which takes in the territory from the Malahat to Jordan River—said he was not at liberty to disclose the number of votes cast.

But people have been filing into the office pretty steadily since we had the mass meeting a few Sundays back," he said Tuesday night.

"Unfortunately, the others are on their holidays right now."

Final results today are expected to disclose between 65 and 88 per cent of total votes cast being in favor of acceptance.

There are 26,000 loggers and 114 companies involved.

The new contract gives Coast IWA members an 18-cent-an-hour raise retroactive to June 15, making the base rate $2.94, with a further 18 cents next June.

***

Although the percentage was not available, it was known that members of the big Vancouver local had gone against the advice of their leaders, and voted in favor of acceptance.

In Duncan, the same occurred with a 70 per cent vote approval overriding president Weldon Jubenville's recommendation of rejection. Of 4,000 eligible voters, 2,884 cast ballots at 48 operations.

The total was lighter than for the recent strike vote.

Other locals voted: Nanaimo 74 per cent, Port Alberni 73, New Westminster 69, and Courtenay 61.

***

Still to be received are the loggers' local and the lumber inspectors' local.

Approval comes after a split in the union's negotiating committee, while Weldon Jubenville cast the deciding vote in favor.

"It seems our members were quite happy with the efforts of the negotiating committee," said Victoria's Joe Fowler.

Murray Drew, president of the Victoria local and Weldon Jubenville, were in Vancouver Tuesday attending a union meeting.

NOT TREATED

Municipal engineer William Gerry said Monday that 10 per cent Gorge water is running into the chlorinated fresh water pool to increase the effectiveness of the chlorine.

Society member Gordon Campbell said Tuesday he had questioned metropolitan health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread about the qualities of the Gorge and other recreational areas, because he felt the Gorge water is comparatively good.

NO INFORMATION

"He simply refused to supply the information."

"Last year Dr. Whitbread pointed to the Gorge as the local source of infectious hepatitis in the area, and had it patted accordingly."

"Now, for reasons best known to those responsible, water from the Gorge is being added to the pool."

STILL SAYING IT?

"Does Dr. Whitbread still say there is a danger of hepatitis for anyone coming into contact with the Gorge waters?"

"If so, is he endangering the health of children by permitting Gorge waters to enter the pool?"

NOT TREATED

Municipal engineer William Gerry said the pool is not treated for the hepatitis virus, because he does not think there is any equipment for such testing in the area.

However, he said, no one swims in the water for 12 hours after the Gorge water is mixed at night with the treated water and the virus will not survive that long in chlorinated water.

Inquest Called In Car Death

An inquest has been called into the death of Mrs. Marjorie Martin, 70, of 43 Michigan, who died about 11 hours after being involved in a two-car accident on the Malahat.

The driver of a car sought by police in connection with the accident reported to police Tuesday. Police said it was unlikely that charges would be laid.

The inquest will begin at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at McCall's funeral home.

At a coroner's inquiry earlier Tuesday into the death of Mrs. Amy Hoover, 71, of 403 Shelbourne, Corone Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre ruled that death was caused by a heart attack.

Mrs. Hoover was found floating outside her house after a water main burst Monday and created a deep pool.

Sewage Disposal Report Boosted by Gorge Body

The controversial sewage disposal report, which advocated spending $23,500,000 on trunk sewers emptying into the sea, was given strong support Tuesday by the executive of the Portage Inlet and Gorge Waterways Society.

Dr. John Rogers, president, said the society is concerned about the controversy, and supports the metropolitan health board and the regional board in their efforts to provide sewers for the lower end of Vancouver Island.

"In our opinion the installation of sewers and the collection of all sewage in the areas surrounding Portage Inlet and the Gorge is the only lasting logical way of curing the problem of pollution in these waters."

In a statement issued Tuesday, the society called for support of the Sept. 29 sewer consolidation bylaw in Saanich.

The bylaw, said the statement, is also supported by two local MP's, David Gross and David Anderson, both society members.

The society asked Victorians to support the recommendations of the sewage report.

Debentures Disappearing In Over-the-Counter Sale

More than $250,000 of Saanich debentures have been sold over the counter, fiscal agent Malcolm Brown announced Tuesday.

"It's fantastic," he said, "especially with the postal strike on. There is only about $100,000 left to be sold."

Total issue is for $1,900,000 to finance capital and recreational projects. The bulk of the issue was sold, as always, in large blocks.

But Mr. Brown, who is municipal bond specialist with Odium Brown & T.B. Read Ltd., of Vancouver, said he had never seen such response from individuals.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said the "excellent response tells us that people are extremely interested and confident in the future of the municipality."

The municipality will be giving them another opportunity before too long to invest in an additional $2,100,000 in bonds, to make up the balance of a $4,000,000 total.

Kinsman-Gorge Pool Popularity Redoubled

Old swimming hole at Kinsman-Gorge park is drawing children in redoubled numbers to converted swamp since pollution notices have scared swimmers from beaches. Chlorinated water is 90 per cent fresh, with 10 per cent Gorge contribution, to increase effectiveness of chlorine and cut down on red eye and runny noses. See also Page 16.—(Jim Ryan).

Gonzales Beach 'Mayor' Aroused

Log Jam Hits Stone Wall

By DON COLLINS

Yvo P. A. Vesey — some call him the unofficial mayor of Foul Bay — has been fighting the good fight for Gonzales Beach since the day the city of Victoria knocked over the change house.

And, in spite of all those who would tell him you can't beat city hall, he shows no sign of wanting to quit.

On Tuesday his latest weapon landed in the city clerk's office in the form of a two-page typewritten letter and a petition bearing 61 names.

The message was simple: get those unsightly logs off the beach and restore it to its former beautiful self.

It was addressed to Mayor Hugh Stephen and members of council.

Ald. Oceil Parrott, who was acting mayor when the letter and petition arrived, said he doubted anything could be done to change things at the beach. The cost would be too much, he says, and the solutions are too complex.

Other civic officials agreed, although they have come to respect Mr. Vesey for his opinions, which they say are made abundantly clear to them at least three times a year.

"You have to respect the guy," said one civic official who didn't want to be named. "He loves that beach and wants to do all he can for it."

"The guy," is by day a cab driver and by night a resident of 1811 Crescent Road.

City engineer James Garrett, who disagrees with the various ways in which the "unofficial mayor" would clear the beach, nevertheless says Mr. Vesey is right on these points:

Gonzales Beach is the only sandy beach within the city, has unpolluted water and a gradual slope that provides safe wading for children.

One of the motions advocated by Mr. Vesey in the burning of the hundreds of logs that have washed up on the beach. He feels the anti-smoke bylaw could be relaxed.

City spokesmen say you can't relax the bylaw without changing it.

The city did clean up the beach by burning the logs until a couple of years ago.

Mr. Haddock said that was hardly fair, since his store

About that time, Courtney Haddock, who was manager of Woodward's department store in Mayfair Plaza, had just painted his home near the beach, only to find it covered with the black evidence of the smoke.

In his letter, Mr. Vesey said the city could erect a boom to keep the logs out, but Mr. Garnett suspected this would be far too costly. The waters of the bay are rough during the winter and the boom had just submitted to city pressure to stop scattering fly ash while burning refuse.

In his letter, Mr. Vesey said the city could erect a boom to keep the logs out, but Mr. Garnett suspected this would be far too costly. The waters of the bay are rough during the winter and the boom would have to be of expensive construction, he says.

Mr. Vesey's third advocated solution was that the city tow the logs off to pulp mills and earn a little money.

No, say city spokesmen, for two reasons: the city hasn't the right to tow other people's logs, and the pulp mills aren't interested in logs that have been lying around beaches gathering stones.

The cab driver with the deep concern for his beach first popped over the civic horizon a few years ago when the parks department knocked down the beach's change house to make way for a new one. The move was a little premature, and the beach went a while without a change house.

Sewers' Defeat Means Saanich 'Catastrophe'

Sewage Dumping Alternative Just Takes Cash

Greater Victoria residents don't have to dump raw sewage into the Strait, Saanich engineer Neville Liffe said Tuesday.

"All they have to do is decide to pay $16,000,000 for sewage treatment plants," he said.

"And, of course, they'll have to pay much heavier maintenance," he added. "It all boils down to how much the taxpayer is willing to pay."

The sanitary sewage study of the Greater Victoria area, completed two years ago, estimated the cost of works recommended at $23,500,000. The addition of treatment plants would cost $16,000,000 in addition to high operating and maintenance costs.

"The region would suffer as much as Saanich, he said, and the whole area would develop "out of sequence."

There would be an end to planning, because it would have no rational basis.

SCATTERED PLAN

Developers would go in where land percolated (for septic tanks). This would set a pattern which would be very costly to the taxpayer and municipality because of its scattered nature.

"Then, when sewers finally came in, bits and pieces of development would be stranded, as indeed some are now as a result of what happened in the 1940s and 1950s."

IT'S 'CATASTROPHE'

"It would be catastrophe, absolute catastrophe," the planner said.

"It would set land development back, who knows how many years, and be much more costly than if sewers were put in in the first place."

Sprinklers Sagging In Early Evenings

Water pressure dropped in many areas of Saanich Tuesday night due to a rush of residents to water their lawns and flowers.

Water works superintendent Harold Hennus issued a plea to users to refrain from watering between the hours of 5 and 9 p.m.

"They'll find they have water pressure if everybody comes," he said.

Students Spell Out Changes Hoped for University Life

By BILL STAVDAL

University of Victoria faculty committees were presented this week with specific student proposals for remaking university life.

They include an end to compulsory courses, abolition of term-end exams, an increase in the discretionary power of professors, and opening up of the university government to public scrutiny and student participation.

The proposals are an expansion of a student manifesto delivered to the administration in June. The June declaration, similar to others written at UBC and Simon Fraser University, called for restructuring the university.

Frank Fritsch, 23, president of the student representative assembly, said the detailed proposals were presented at a meeting with the university's academic planning and government committees.

The academic planning committee is headed by Dr. Derek Sewell and Dr. Alan Gowans heads the university government committee.

The students' declaration says:

"Flexibility must be the guiding principle for the kind of university we would like."

Alternate Methods

"The university should offer enough alternate methods of instruction to satisfy the varying needs of all students enrolled."

"A student should be permitted to decide whether he is evaluated. He should be allowed to be lectured to, or work on his own, at his own pace. Students must have at their disposal the means of instruction which best suits them."

The students propose creation of a group of professors who would act as counsellors. They would advise students on how to plan their courses of studies.

Other proposals:

compulsory courses, only departmental prerequisites;

Prerequisites should be done away with, other than in a student's area of concentration;

"Professors and advisers must be given an unlimited authority in allowing and designing a course outline for individual students."

Students should know what professors will teach multi-class courses, and have their choice of teachers.

Exams Downgraded

In the area of examinations and evaluation, the students say:

Exams should be given at the discretion of the professor;

Students should evaluate students on the basis of research papers and class participation, rather than by exams, where possible;

A pass-fail system of grading should be implemented.

University government should be revamped, the students say.

Each department should have the autonomy to set the courses and prerequisites for a degree. Curriculum committees within the departments should be made up of equal numbers of faculty and students.

Exams should be given at the discretion of the professor;

Students should evaluate students on the basis of research papers and class participation, rather than by exams, where possible;

A pass-fail system of grading should be implemented.

University government should be revamped, the students say.

The title of dean should be abolished, say the students.

The senate should be composed of half faculty and half students, and the board of governors should be an economic advisory body with no government appointees.

At present, government appointees form a majority.)

Singapore Trip Set Early '69

A trip to Singapore early next year has been scheduled for Oak Bay's national champion Reach for The Top quiz team, said coach Glen Atkinson on Tuesday.

Mr. Atkinson said the trip will last 12 days but no exact date has been set. It will be paid for by the CBC, on which the students will be present.

The quiz show caused a furor when it was learned here that another group of students had already been chosen to represent Canada in an international competition.

The Oak Bay students are Chris Odgers, Bruce Izard, Robert McDougall and Jim Dempsey and John Duder.

Unsuitable Parents Having More and More Offspring

By NANCY BROWN

Procreation should be available to only the best and noblest people in society, says Family and Children's Services supervisor Bernice Packford.

She said that 500 Greater Victoria children of all ages in foster care at the end of May are evidence that people who are not suited to parenthood are having children.

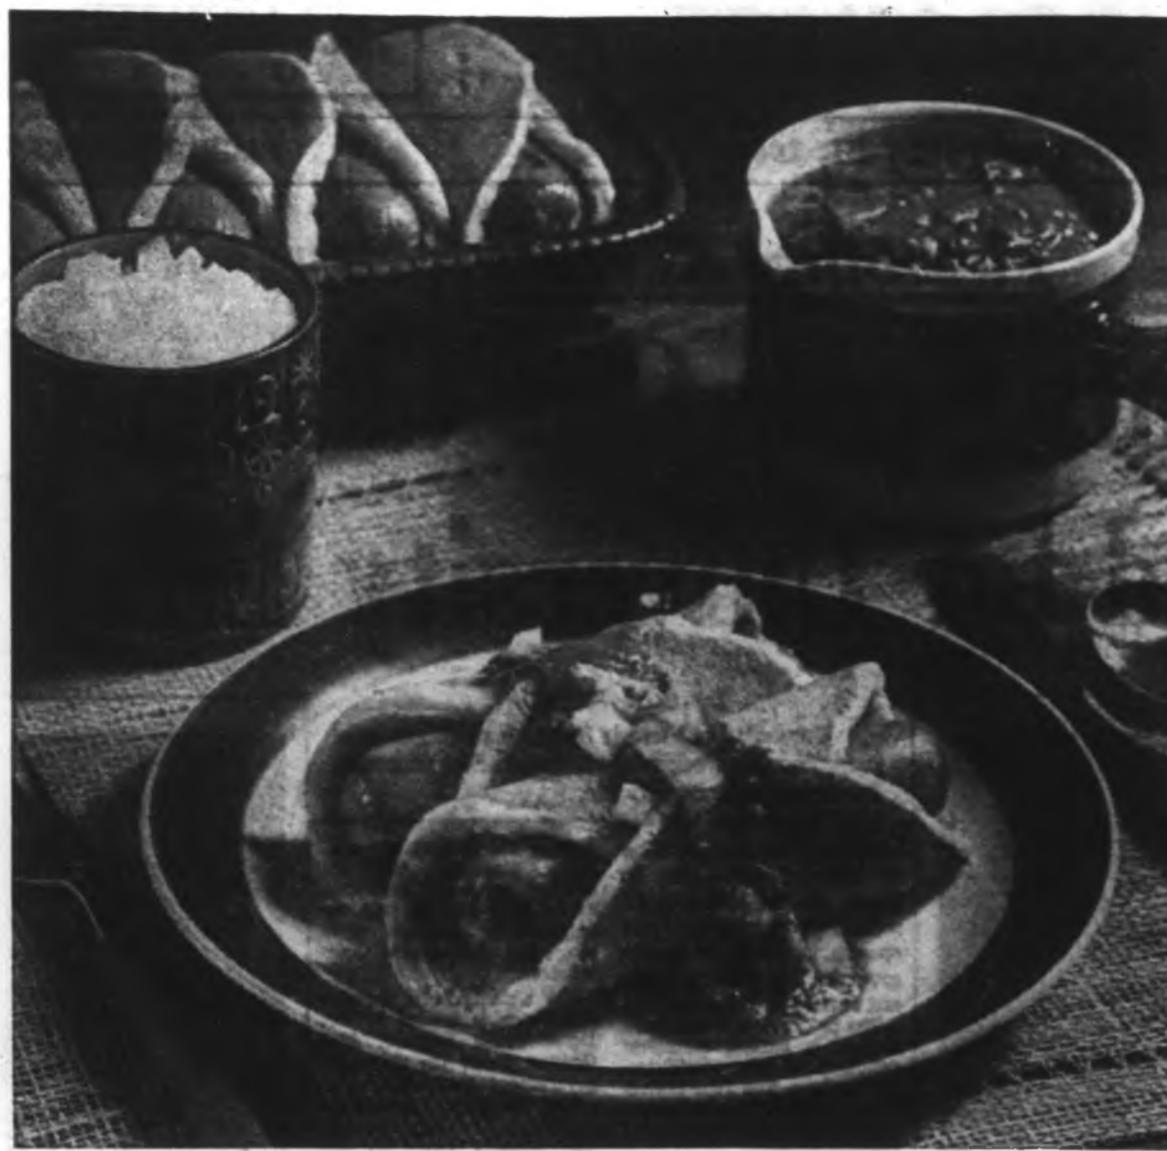

"This is a 62 per cent increase over the last three years, while Victoria's population has increased about 20 per cent," she said.

There is a feeling that these things must be examined, both among students and faculty.

"I don't expect change overnight, but certainly there should be changes in the next year."

Greater Victoria residents should be able to help and support families with home makers, day care, counselling and funds—and we don't even have enough foster homes," she said.

Mrs. Packford said that in March, 1967, there were 8,540 children

Landers

Dear Ann Landers: May I air my number-one gripe as others have? I don't expect you to print it but I'll feel better if I get it off my chest.

Dentists are, in my opinion, the most backward of all professionals. If Benjamin Franklin had not invented false teeth, people would be walking around toothless today.

I have been reading articles on tooth transplants since I was a child. They have been "experimenting" for the last 20 years. I have written to the authors of the articles to learn which dentists perform the procedure. The replies were vague. I never did find a dentist who could transplant a tooth.

All they know is drilling and pulling and dentures and partial plates. They are too busy raking in the money to learn anything new. Today when kidneys, the liver, human hair and even the heart can be successfully transplanted, is it too much to ask that the dentists get busy and join the Twentieth Century? — EXPOSED NERVE

Dear Nerve: There are hundreds of dentists who transplant teeth. Where have you been looking? Transplanting teeth began in the 18th Century. Your reference to Benjamin Franklin is interesting. The agony produced by his handmade teeth (fashioned out of hippopotamus ivory, wood, gold plate, rivets, screws, human incisor teeth and steel springs) started dentists experimenting with tooth transplants.

Anonymous Gift

Dear Ann Landers: I am living with a man I love very much. We are not married because his selfish, money-bungry wife will not give him a divorce. Some people know the score, others do not. I could not care less about the talk.

Yesterday was my birthday. I received an anonymous gift — a set of pillowcases on which was embroidered "Mr." and "Mrs." I'm sure this was a dig by one of the cats who works with me in this office. I also think I know which girl sent the gift. Shall I play dumb, let her have it — right in the chops? — NOT SENSITIVE JUST MAD

Hands for Rent

TORONTO (CP) — Need a helping hand? Why not rent two?

Anne Mason has gathered a group of men and women who are willing to lend a helping hand. They charge a small fee and work for a limited time.

Mrs. Mason calls her business Operation Angel and it is patterned after the Universal Angels in England.

"They provide the kind of help that a friend could offer in sort of a social emergency," she said. "I can provide an angel to cook a meal, do shopping, get the house ready for arrival from a holiday, or meet friends or relatives at the airport, train or bus."

days to a week to hospital to sit with a mother of a client."

But Mrs. Mason insists on one rule — that her angels enjoy their work — and emphasizes that if anyone is desperately in need of a cleaning woman not to call Operation Angel.

"It's not our line," she said, "and neither is the sick-type of call with propositions."

Hopping for Only One Dollar

By EUGENIA SHEPPARD

NEW YORK — "We never get to see our old friends any more," say Bud and Daisy Palmer, who know all of social New York and of Newport, which was virtually invented by Daisy's mother, Mrs. W. G. Dyer.

It isn't that the Palmers have gone into seclusion. They are still living right in the heart of Park Avenue, in an apartment full of plants to remind them of the outdoors and crammed with bicycles and sporting gear that belong to the two youngest of their four children.

The problem is simply Bud's new dollar-a-year job that he took on in addition to sports broadcasting. Soon after Mayor Lindsay's election he became Commissioner of Department of Public Events, a job invented by the late Grover Whalen. In uncomplicated English it means that he's a combination of official greeter and best friend to all the glittering public personalities who visit here.

★ ★ ★

"I didn't have the faintest idea what the job was like, when I took it. I had never set foot in City Hall until I took the oath," says Bud Palmer, "and I've never got my dollar yet."

Official recognition of a visiting celebrity can take many forms, from a simple letter of welcome signed by the Mayor to a formal dinner at Gracie Mansion or one of New York's museums.

"We get the most surprising reactions from the letters," Bud Palmer says. "Arlie Onassis wrote back four pages."

The idea of dinners in the museums was his own. "The minute I saw the Cloisters I thought what a wonderful place for a party." Lots of swingers have had the same reaction.

The most spectacular party for a visiting celebrity so far was the one held in the Botanical Gardens for the president of Turkey. The setting was the old Victorian conservatory full of towering, tropical plants. "It was like a jungle." The largest party was for King Olav V of Norway in the garden court of the Brooklyn Museum. One night the president of the Republic of Tunisia, Habib Bourguiba, was guest of honor at the Metropolitan Museum. Cocktails were in the mezzanine gallery and dinner around the pool.

"Both the Mayor and Mrs. Lindsay always take an active part in picking the place and the guest list," Bud Palmer says.

If there's one thing he prides himself on, it's keeping the best dressed and best looking office staff in town. "I figure we can work just as well with attractive looking girls around the pool."

Most of his staff has been places and met lots of people. They know who's who, which is helpful when it comes to seating several hundred assorted guests at small tables. Good-looking Joan Sams, his first assistant, takes care of the consular offices. Other helpers are Sheila Wood and Patsy Grant, whose father is president of the Mets. Topay and Ellie Taylor, and some of the other Newport girls often act as hostesses at the parties. "I figure any celebrity likes to have a pretty girl show him where to put his coat."

Parking Space Fatal to Some

NICE, France (AP) — Some persons have been killed defending parking places in Paris but Anne Berthelot suffered only a broken arm. She refused to heed a shopkeeper's warning that she had parked in a prohibited area and went shopping. When she returned she found he had let the air out of her tires and they scuffed. Now her lawyer is filing charges of causing bodily harm.

World Events Confuse Even Experts

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — There you are, nice little family. All settled for prime time television. Then, the set goes blotto.

You must do an unaccustomed thing — talk at length to one another. You know. Converse.

A good time and maybe some arguments can be had by all if you try to come up with a list of the 10 most important events of the last 200 years.

In a cyclopaedia Britannica, marking its two century birthday, asked its editors, a batch of eggheads and tycoons from elsewhere, and selected school teachers to do just that.

Nearly 300 events were cited and 30 of these consistently appeared. But those sifting the lists couldn't come up with a top 10. There was that much disagreement.

Events consistently recorded and reflecting a degree of unanimity of opinion included:

American Revolution and resulting Declaration of Independence, steam engine, smallpox vaccine, telephone, French Revolution, first auto, introduction of motion pictures, first plane flight, television first demonstrated, discovery of penicillin, the two world wars.

First nuclear explosion, electronic computers first available commercially, development of oral contraceptives, first thermosetting explosion, first artificial Earth satellite.

Science teachers selected scientific advances, history teachers tended to favor historical events. Throughout, it was to each his own career interest.

To everyone, the most important events of the last 200 years is obvious. John Mack Carter, editor of the "Ladies Home Journal," didn't put it on his list but he reminded the polisters of the fact.

And that is, of course, the matter of being born. It was the most important event in your lifetime, wasn't it?

I'm sorry the polisters didn't divide the panel into under-thirties, over-thirties, bachelors, bachelors, married men and so on.

The under-thirties probably would have on their list the Beatles, mod clothes, rock 'n roll, emergence of student power, transistor radios, affluence. Among old things on the list would be that thing they can't survive without during adolescence. The telephone.

The over-thirties probably would have on their list the fact that they survived the Depression, can look forward to social security, crabgrass killer, and the development of power mowers.

Married men would be expected to put on their lists the great wedding day. Otherwise, their wives would be mad at them.

And bachelors?

Naturally, the fact that they haven't been trapped yet would rate as a single most important event, wouldn't it?

Birth Control Ruling Defended, Roasted

VATICAN CITY (CP-AP) — The Vatican's newspaper strongly defended Tuesday Pope Paul's encyclical condemning artificial methods of birth control as criticism mounted around the world.

An editorial in the daily L'Observatore Romano pointed out that the encyclical issued by the Pope Monday called artificial contraception "a mortal, moral and physical mutilation."

The newspaper said criticism is bound to increase, but added that controversy is fashionable nowadays.

SEEMS HARD

"Pope Paul is perfectly conscious that his new teaching, in harmony with that of his predecessors, will appear hard to whoever does not meditate on it," the editorial said.

"If a few persons don't understand it, it is because they are swept up in a wrong vision of man."

L'Observatore stressed that the encyclical "does not oppose the regulation of births." This was a reference to the rhythm method approved by the church for Roman Catholics.

Opponents branded the measure, an amendment to the $1.9 billion foreign aid bill, as "silly" since no U.S. aid is given now to communist countries. But Sen. Peter Dominick (R-Colo.) insisted it might impel Russia to bring pressure on North Korea to release the crew.

Dominick's amendment provoked an angry 45-minute debate on the Pueblo's fate. Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield shouted warnings that any forceful action to get the Pueblo back would involve the U.S. "in a second land war in Asia."

But the amendment passed anyway.

Victoria Funeral Planned

Victoria-born Murray Walker, 22, of North Surrey, who died over the weekend of injuries from a traffic accident, will be buried Thursday in Royal Oak Burial Park, because his parents intend to return to Victoria on retirement.

The household specialist salesmen, who attended South Park and George Jay schools before leaving here with his family when he was 12, was killed near the North Surrey home where he lived with parents Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Walker.

Other survivors are his sister, Mrs. Doris McAdam of Victoria, and brothers Roy of Burns Lake, Bruce of Victoria and Glen of Vancouver. The funeral will begin in Hayward's at 1:30 p.m. Thursday.

Sea Race Official

VANCOUVER (CP) — Official results issued Tuesday for the Victoria-Maui yacht race July 1-16 confirmed the victory of Porpoise III of Vancouver in 14 days, 16 hours, 39 minutes. Other times, in order:

Yacht, Victoria, 14-15-36; Juggernaut, Vancouver, 14-15-36; Mewstone III, Tacoma, 15-21-30; African Star, Seattle, 15-21-30; No. 1, Seattle, 15-21-30; Rainbird, Seattle, 16-13-03; Tideline, Victoria, 15-16-30; Gabetti, 17-18-02; Star, Victoria, 15-16-30; Victoria, 17-18-02; Mary Bowe, Vancouver, 17-18-02; Sam, 15-16-30; Puffin, Victoria, 15-16-30; HMCS Queen Elizabeth, 18-04-02.

Hotel Fire Kills Four

ILKLEY, England (AP) — Four persons were found dead after a fire swept through a hotel in Yorkshire. Twenty others were rescued by firemen.

church-oriented Christian Democrat party, said the encyclical "did not satisfy the hunger of millions of hungry persons in a world where machines are replacing men."

Vatican authorities reported they had received hundreds of telegrams of support. They received cables from the episcopal conferences of the Philippines, Paraguay, Scotland and Spain.

They said a cable of support had been received from Patrick Cardinal O'Boyle, archbishop of Washington, D.C.

But a group claiming to speak for 142 of the 1,223 priests in his diocese said they would disregard the encyclical.

Also in Washington, a group of 17 Roman Catholic theologians from throughout the country went on record at a news conference as being critical of the encyclical. Their statement said the encyclical "is not an infallible teaching" and that Roman Catholics may dissent from it.

'AGAINST GOD'

John Cardinal Krol, Archbishop of Philadelphia, said priests who disagree with the encyclical may not speak out against them from the pulpit or in the confessional.

Cardinal Krol said Roman Catholics who find the Pope's ruling unacceptable "are mounting an insurrection against God."

Tacit Pact

LONDON (CP) — Archbishop Thomas Roberts, a Jesuit who was formerly archbishop of Bombay and has long been a bitter critic of his own church's attitude, said Tuesday of the ban:

"I know of many cases where people simply never mention this in confession, and the priests do not ask questions. There is a tacit agreement which exists and which I think will go on."

The newspaper said criticism is bound to increase, but added that controversy is fashionable nowadays.

SEEMS HARD

"Pope Paul is perfectly conscious that his new teaching, in harmony with that of his predecessors, will appear hard to whoever does not meditate on it," the editorial said.

L'Observatore stressed that the encyclical "does not oppose the regulation of births." This was a reference to the rhythm method approved by the church for Roman Catholics.

NO EXEMPTION

"It does not ignore acute and painful problems which can develop in the family," the editorial continued. "But it does not permit regulation through artificial means which would exempt men from the responsible use of their faculties and lead them to a bad use of liberty."

In London, the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey, issued a statement Tuesday re-affirming the decision of the 1958 Lambeth conference. He said the means of limiting the children in a family are "a matter for the consciences of each husband and wife."

BACKING EXPECTED

He issued his statement after meeting with the steering committee of the current Lambeth conference. A committee member is Rt. Rev. Ralph S. Dean of London, bishop of the Canadian diocese of Cariboo. He is episcopal secretary of the conference as well as executive officer of the Anglican communion.

Bishop Dean said he had every reason to believe the 476 bishops at the conference would endorse the archbishop's statement.

'OUT OF DATE'

Reaction from the Roman Catholic hierarchy in Ireland Tuesday was one of general acceptance of the encyclical. But Rev. James Good, professor of theology at University College, Cork, termed it "out of date and inadequate," and said he foresees a "tremendous explosion" of protest leading to a call for withdrawal of the encyclical.

Pope Paul has not yet personally spoken about the matter, but Vatican informants expected the 70-year-old pontiff to allude to the encyclical in his general audience today, as he has done after publication of important statements in the past.

Some of the most acid attacks on the encyclical came from the press of Italy. The Vatican already is under fire in the press for its opposition to divorce and its reluctance to pay taxes on its Italian stock dividends.

The Rome independent daily Il Messaggero, which often reflects the thinking of the

Blaine Still Busy

Mail Sidesteps Rule

BLAINE, Wash. (CP) — Canadians bringing mail for posting at the border town 30 miles southeast of Vancouver were hindered Tuesday by a United States customs regulation.

Fred McMillan, port director of customs here, said he received word at noon Tuesday that all first class mail from Canada must carry full Canadian postage before it can be brought into the U.S.

Because of the postal strike in Canada, many Canadian companies and individuals from the lower mainland area of British Columbia have been using the post office here regularly to send mail destined to non-Canadian points.

Under the new regulation, such mail would have to have double postage. Canadians are permitted to remove the correspondence, bring it into Blaine, put it in new envelopes and mail it in the usual way with U.S. stamps, McMillan said.

McMillan said that in practice, however, the regulation is not stopping the Canadians. He said it applies only to first class, or sealed-envelope, mail and Canadians are quite at liberty to bring across mail in any other form.

If they do report at customs with sealed envelopes, they are permitted to remove the correspondence, bring it into Blaine, put it in new envelopes and mail it in the usual way with U.S. stamps, McMillan said.

Trudeau Told

Business Faces Damage

OTTAWA (CP) — The Automotive Industries Association said Tuesday that business will be hurt badly if the postal strike is not settled well in advance of Aug. 10.

The association said in a telegram to Prime Minister Trudeau that the 10th of the month is the normal time for suppliers to be paid by their customers and obtain discounts.

"This is also the normal time of the month when all clearings are made through the banks," the telegram said. "If they cannot be met then, firms will be faced with large loans over an extended period of time in order to carry on their business until collections can be made."

EXCESSIVE LOAD

Thomas H. Whelans, executive vice-president of the association, said in the telegram to the prime minister:

"Do not permit this situation to happen, as it will place an excessive financial load on all business firms, from which there is no recovery. The economy will be hurt through decreased employment and higher costs to the consumer and business, because of the added costs now being created."

Quebec Seeks Support

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government plans to seek support for its views on provincial jurisdiction within confederation in dealing with other countries at this week's conference of provincial premiers, a government spokesman said Monday.

Claude Morin, deputy minister of intergovernmental affairs for Quebec, said the province's delegation to the Lake Waskesiu, Sask., meetings, which begins today, will have its chance when the subject — "provincial relations with foreign countries" — appears on the agenda.

He was picked up by Shawnigan Lake RCMP on the Trans-Canada Highway on the Mala-

Volcano Kills 51 Costa Ricans

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — Mt. Arnel volcano hurled stones and great clouds of ash into Costa Rica's night skies Tuesday. The death toll from the mighty eruption rose to 51 and President Jose Joaquin Trejo declared a state of emergency.

At least 112 persons were missing, the Costa Rican National Guard said. Hundreds were injured. Thousands evacuated their homes.

The volcano 45 miles northwest of San Jose had been thought to be extinct. It had been quiet for 500 years. It erupted with a terrific roar Monday morning. The blast was followed by a hot wave of gas that cremated most of the victims who lived near the mountain.

Eruptions continued Tuesday night and the volcano spewed forth lava, rock ash and sulphurous gases. Ash dropped as far as 60 miles away.

The little town of Puerto Nuevo—closest to the volcano

—was partially destroyed. Authorities said all its 8,447 residents who survived had fled.

The U.S. Army southern command headquarters in Panama, about 250 miles east of here, sent two helicopters, medical and food supplies and a team of medics to assist in the rescue operation.

The national guard said several thousand persons reside in scattered villages and farms in the area affected by the volcano's eruptions. In addition to the evacuations at

Pueblo Nuevo, the guard also reported evacuating 4,000 persons from the town of Arenal.

The national guard said eight families who lived near Pueblo Nuevo were missing.

Rescue workers were hampered by the clouds of gas, falling ash and, in areas closer to the volcano, flowing lava and hot, falling rocks. Rock ash covered a 150-square-mile area around the volcano, the national guard reported, in some areas as much as eight inches thick.

Crisis Talks Frank

CIERNA NAD TISOU (Reuter) — The Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia said Tuesday night their showdown meeting in this Slovak border city continued in an atmosphere of "comradely frankness."

Virtually identical statements issued in Moscow and Prague gave no further details on the talks, except to say individual members of each delegation spoke during the discussion.

SECRET SERIOD

A Stockholm newspaper said Monday's discussion ended in heated, pety quarrelling.

Other than that, the meeting of the Soviet Communist party politburo and the Czechoslovak party presidium in this bleak border town continued to be shrouded in secrecy.

In the language of Communist statements, "comradely frankness" usually means hard talk.

Big Rock Drowns Two Boys

COCOA, Fla. (UPI) — Two young boys were killed Tuesday when a huge boulder crashed onto them as they swam in a small sand pit filled with water.

George Davis and Tommy Orno, both 13-year-old residents of nearby Port St. John, drowned when the six-by-three foot boulder tumbled down the four-foot-high clay banks of the pit and pinned them below eight feet of water.

LOUD NOISE

"All of a sudden, there was a loud noise and I looked back just in time to see them disappear under the rocks and sand," said Eddie Reeder, 14, who was playing at the shore.

A third youth, George Copeland, 13, scrambled from the water unharmed.

Marl is a crumbly soil composed of clay, sand and calcium carbonate. It is used as fertilizer and in making clay and bricks.

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviets moved a vast three-nation military force toward Czechoslovakia's northern border Tuesday as reports from the critical Czechoslovak-Soviet summit talks gave little room for optimism.

The Soviets announced early Tuesday they were expanding their military exercises into East Germany and Poland and troops from these two hardline communist nations would join in.

STEADY MOVEMENT

Sources in Poland and East Germany reported army units moving steadily south toward the Czech border where the Soviets already have considerable troop strength in position.

It was the first time the Soviets had held joint maneuvers on allied territories, and with other national armies outside the framework of the Warsaw Treaty.

NOT HUNGARY

It was noted here that Hungary, on Czechoslovakia's southern border, was apparently not given a role so far in the Soviet-directed show of military preparedness.

The ominous military gestures were taken seriously by western experts here.

The Soviet Communist Party has repeatedly said it would not tolerate an anti-communist Czechoslovakia. Poland, East Germany, Hungary and Bulgaria supported the Kremlin's attitude in the Warsaw letter to the liberalizing regime of Czech party leader Alexander Dubcek.

AT STAKE

At stake are both the Soviet Union's prestige as leader of an already schismatic world communist movement, and — the Soviets believe — the dependability of their forward defense perimeter.

The highly-publicized movements were moving up Soviet troops from the deep rear to positions where they could supply and reinforce the front-line combat troops.

Rebirth of Cities Humphrey Vow

SAN FRANCISCO (LAT) — Vice-President Hubert Humphrey proposed a Marshall Plan Tuesday for rebuilding U.S. cities. He also suggested building a pilot city to serve as a model for the future.

"Like the original Marshall Plan that rebuilt Europe, this one must rely heavily on self-help, local initiative, co-ordinated planning, private capital," said Humphrey in a speech at a meeting of the Commonwealth Club. (See also Page 3.)

"Much more than the federal checkbook must be involved in any lasting solution to the urban crisis," he added.

He said the plan would include creation of a national urban development bank, funded largely from private funds.

Humphrey said the bank, working through regional subsidiaries, would provide federal underwriting for "unusual risks involved in meeting the hardest and most critical urban problems."

The vice-president also proposed establishment of a national domestic policy council in the White House to direct reorganization of the federal bureaucracy.

Looking ahead to the U.S.'s 200th anniversary in 1976, he proposed that the bicentennial be celebrated by building a "pilot city for a new America."

"This new city would test new ideas in land use, housing, technology and community leadership," said Humphrey.

"It's construction would attract the finest talents in America from American industry, the states, municipalities and the federal government."

Angry Grizzly Mom Chased With Whack from Fly Rod

SPOKANE (AP) — A Spokane couple told Tuesday how they fought off an enraged grizzly bear in western Montana timber land with only a fishing rod for defence.

Hubert Tauscher and his wife said they were fishing near Noxon, Mont., last week when they stumbled upon the mother grizzly's domain. Apparently fearful for her cubs, they said the snarling mother bear charged them time and again.

Their report follows the recent killing of least three grizzlies in sections of Montana after the bears threatened people.

a tree, but Tauscher stood his ground with the fly rod.

"He whacked the grizzly over her nose with the tip of the rod," she said. "One time the bear reared up on her hind legs and roared, her fangs showing and her claws extended."

They said two almost fully grown cubs then sprang out of the bushes and the three bears retreated.

Tots Survive Bush Ordeal

By DAVE STOCKLAND

GRAND RAPIDS, Man. (CP)

— Indian trackers Tuesday night found two children who survived an astonishing ordeal of six days and five nights lost in desolate northern Manitoba bush.

Jill Sinclair, 8, and her four-year-old brother, Kirby, were alive and in apparently good condition, although scratched and bitten by insects.

They were taken from this Lake Winnipeg power centre to the radar station at Gypsumville, 110 miles south on the Winnipeg-Grand Rapids highway, where doctors were to assess their condition and decide whether to transport them to a city hospital.

BEHIND LOG

They were found huddled behind a log in the area of Buffalo Lake, 12 to 15 miles from the spot where they wandered from their parents' root-picking camp last Thursday. The group of Indian and Métis searchers who traced them were confident from the start that footprints first found Sunday would eventually lead them to the wandering tots.

Groups of army searchers, flown in earlier in the day in four planes, were working a different area at the time.

UNCLE OVER

"It sure was a happy moment when we found them," said Percy Jensen, an uncle of the children who was in the rescue party.

The 19 rescuers took turns carrying the children as they ran the two miles to the nearest bush trail and a waiting vehicle.

Footprints, a string of wool from Kirby's jacket and a strand of Jill's hair helped lead the keen-eyed woodsmen to their swampland resting place.

SCARED BY YELLS

"They looked up and smiled and then crawled back down again," said Jensen.

"We were all so happy we yelled and shouted and we scared them. They cried a lot and then they recognized their uncle, Saul Cook, and calmed down again."

Jensen said the parents, Mr.

Postal Union is seeking a flat 75-cent-an-hour increase over a 14-month contract for most employees, and an increase of 55 cents for its lowest-paid members. The government offered a 15-cent increase in two stages.

Government and union representatives launched with mediator Judge Rene Lepage for two hours Tuesday afternoon, then adjourned.

They met only briefly Tuesday night and agreed to get together again around 11 a.m. today in the judge's 18th-floor hotel suite. There was no comment on the progress of the talks.

The dispute concerns a proposed contract that, under new bargaining legislation, would expire Sept. 30 this year and thus be mainly retrospective. However, there has been speculation that an agreement covering a longer period could be worked out.

Trudeau's Vacation Dreams Disappear Under Workload

OTTAWA (CP) — Chances of a tenuous meeting to square away the legislative program Prime Minister Trudeau getting away for a pre-conviction vacation are growing slim.

A source close to Trudeau said Tuesday the prime minister plans to attend the regular cabinet meeting today and "stick close" to Ottawa for the rest of the week.

That would leave him only one more week before he and his cabinet start a series of in-that the strike was starting to inflict hardship on individual Canadians and the time for government action was close at hand. The only plausible action in his view was a recall of Parliament.

KEY FACTOR

The national postal strike, which has choked off the mails since July 18, is an obvious factor in Trudeau's decision to remain close to Ottawa.

The strike was only into its fourth day when Trudeau left July 21 for his week-long trip across the North.

Presumably, similar arrangements could be made if he were to skip away on vacation for a week or so.

Ladders Filled by Anglers

COWICHAN BAY — Competition in the Cowichan Bay Salmon Club's annual Spring Ladder Derby stepped up last week. Thirty-one out of the 50-rungs on the ladder were filled by Saturday night — the close of the second week.

The derby continues until Aug. 17. On Aug. 25, the top 50 fishermen occupying rungs on the ladder at this time will enter the grand fish-off.

Prizes include $75 for first place, $50 for second, $25 for third, and two hidden weight prizes.

The fisherman with the largest spring salmon during the five-week derby will receive the Ladder Man of the Year award, an engraved silver tray.

Last week weekly winners were Bill Cameron of Cobble Hill who caught a 25 pound four ounce spring salmon, and Harvey Hodge of Duncan who caught a 22 pound 15 ounce spring.

Hidden weight prizes went to F. S. Schiller of Duncan, Bess Thorarinson of Duncan and Laddie Ponich of Cowichan Bay.

Usually only two hidden weight prizes are awarded, but last week both Mr. Schiller and Mrs. Thorarinson had springs exactly one pound one ounce outside the hidden weight. Consequently both qualified.

In the junior competitions, Judy Williams of Cowichan Bay won the weekly prize with a 25 pound eight ounce spring, putting her at the top of the ladder so far.

Sandy McAra of Cowichan Bay won the junior hidden weight prize.

Nanaimo Property Owners

Bus Subsidy Vote Today

NANAIMO — A poll of property owners will be held in the Nanaimo area today to determine the future of the local bus service.

Electoral areas B — Harewood, D — Northfield, E — Wellington, F — mainly North Wellington, will be held from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. to decide whether or not property owners in the areas approve a tax levy of one mill for 1969 to provide a two-year subsidy to the local bus system.

The secretary-treasurer of the regional district board, Dave

Wilson, said: "If the question is approved, it will be the intention of the regional district board to make a thorough study of the bus operators."

Mr. Wilson outlined that the subsidy, if approved, would provide funds until September 1969 for the board to make a definite decision on whether the system should continue, and if so, whether the system should be publicly or privately owned.

The board would also make a study of traffic volume, equipment operation, and areas of possible expansion of the bus service.

The poll is being held in four separate electoral areas; each is voting independently of the other. A 60 per cent majority vote is needed to pass the subsidy in each area. Any area not approving the tax levy will have its bus service terminated before the board provides any subsidy.

Nanaimo city council has already agreed to participate.

The following is a list of the polling stations for each electoral district:

Departure Bay, Kinsmen Hall; Harewood, Harewood School; activity room; Wellington, Wellington community hall; East Wellington, Mountain View school; Northfield, Forest Park school.

The new contract gives Coast IWA members an 18-cent-an-hour raise retroactive to June 15, making the base rate $2.94, with a further 18 cents next June.

Although the percentage was not available, it was known that members of the big Vancouver local had gone against the advice of their leaders, and voted in favor of acceptance.

There are 26,000 loggers and 114 companies involved.

BATHING SUITS

On Friday the queen's pageant will take place in Robb Road junior high school. The girls will parade in bathing suits, day dress and evening gowns and will give a two-minute talk and a two-minute talent demonstration.

The armed forces will participate in the events with a performance of the Red Knights scheduled for 1:30 p.m. on Saturday and an air-sea rescue demonstration at 1:45 p.m.

NAVY SHIP COMING

A navy ship will be in port and open for public inspection from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. The band from HMCS Naden will present a concert in the shopping centre at 12:30.

Sea cadets from HMCS Quadra will present the sunset ceremony at 8:45 p.m. on Sunday. The same night, prizes will be awarded to winners in the various events which were held the previous day.

A variety of water sports have been arranged including yacht races on Saturday afternoon.

VANCOUVER BAND

Three dances have been planned with tentative arrangements made to bring in the Yellow Brick Road band from Vancouver.

Another event started last year, and which proved successful, is the decorated drill buggy contest. This year decorated wagons have been added to the queen.

Murray Drew, president of the Victoria local and Weldon Jubenville, were in Vancouver Tuesday attending a union meeting.

Approval comes after a split in the union's negotiating committee, which saw regional president Jack Moore cast the deciding vote in favor.

"It seems our members were quite happy with the efforts of the negotiating committee," said Victoria's Joe Fowler.

Murray Drew, president of the Victoria local and Weldon Jubenville, were in Vancouver Tuesday attending a union meeting.

Comox merchants had been generous in donating gifts for the Comox day queen. Yet to be decided is who will crown the queen.

There will be children's sports, tug-of-war, ladies nail driving and a pie-eating contest to complete the schedule.

With the queen pageant on Friday night a full schedule of activities for Saturday and the sunset ceremony on Sunday, residents and visitors will find Comox at its place.

Impaired Driving

Queen's Rifleman Fined His Cheque

NANAIMO — In Magistrate's Court Tuesday, Elmer Herald Johnson, 23, pleaded guilty to impaired driving and to driving without a licence.

The incidents took place in Nanaimo Monday night. Johnson is a rifleman with the Queen's Own Rifles, Esquimalt. Evidence showed he had a breathalyzer reading of .32 per cent, which is just over the presumably accepted level.

Magistrate Eric Winch asked Johnson how much money he makes per month. "I clear $200 per month," Johnson replied.

"I think a month's salary should show the severity of your action," Magistrate Winch said, and promptly ordered Johnson to pay $200. He was prohibited from driving anywhere in Canada for three months.

An additional $10 was levied for driving without a licence.

One frightened little quail was all that was left from a brood of 19 after a coon attacked their small pen in the yard of Mr. and Mrs. Joe McKay, McLeod Road.

The marauding animal ripped out staples from the pen and tore it apart during the night recently.

Bodies of the little birds were scattered all over the yard when the owners came out the next morning. Mrs. McKay took the tiny survivor inside to a basement pen where it is recovering.

declared a holiday from gardening and housekeeping recently. And why not? It was their 50th wedding anniversary. They weren't having any fun, though maybe their daughters would pop in; anyway, what's a 50th when 60th is just around the corner?

Well, it didn't work out quite that way.

Visitors began to arrive early in the afternoon, bringing gifts, flowers and food. Many were members of Union Temple, No. 12; others were members of Florence Chapter.

Daughters, Mrs. Irene Landine and Mrs. Beth Chalmers came from Ladysmith, and joined another daughter, Mrs. Ellen Chalmers, who lives in Union Bay. A grandson, Jeff Landine, Ladysmith, was also present.

Mrs. Magalone cut an anniversary cake during the tea hour.

This well-known couple, who received centenarian medallions a year ago, have spent most of their lives in Union Bay. Bessie McKay came with her parents in 1895, and the story of her life is enfolded in the life of her pioneer mother, Ellen McKay, now approaching her 95th birthday.

Louis came from South Wellington to Cumberland, then called Union, in 1890, and in 1903 came to Union Bay as a brakeman — a job he remained in until retirement.

The romance of this young couple made history in the little community because their marriage in 1908 was the first one in the small Presbyterian Church they had helped build.

Mrs. Magalone followed the example of her pioneer mother and joined the first Ladies' Aid of the new church.

She has worked consistently for the church through the years, and has seen it change from Presbyterian to United and the Ladies' Aid to United Church Women. Her own group is named the Eileen McKay Circle in honor of her mother.

Louis and Bessie are active and happy in their comfortable home on the high hillside.

It was a bad day for Union Bay's water supply recently when two major breaks occurred.

The first was in the main in front of the old jailhouse, which sent water gushing across the highway.

The second—occurring at almost the same time, was in front of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Leman, causing flooding across Station Road.

Gordon Murdoch, work foreman and his crew, were on the job immediately to repair damage and restore the supply.

VOLCANO KILLS 51 COSTA RICANS

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — Mt. Arenal volcano buried stones and great clouds of ash into Costa Rica's night skies Tuesday. The death toll from the mighty eruption rose to 51, and President Jose Joaquin Trejo declared a state of emergency.

At least 112 persons were missing, the Costa Rican National Guard said. Hundreds were injured. Thousands evacuated their homes.

The volcano 45 miles northwest of San Jose had been thought to be extinct. It had been quiet for 500 years. It erupted with a terrific roar Monday morning. The blast was followed by a hot wave of gas that cremated most of the victims who lived near the mountain.

Eruptions continued Tuesday night and the volcano spewed forth lava, rock ash and sulphurous gases. Ash dropped as far as 60 miles away.

The little town of Puerto Nuevo—closest to the volcano

—was partially destroyed. Authorities said all its 8,447 residents who survived had fled.

The U.S. Army southern command headquarters in Panama, about 250 miles east of here, sent two helicopters, medical and food supplies and a team of medics to assist in the rescue operations.

The national guard said several thousand persons reside in scattered villages and farms in the area affected by the volcano's eruptions. In addition to the evacuations at

Pueblo Nuevo, the guard also reported evacuating 4,000 persons from the town of Arenal.

The national guard said eight families who lived near Pueblo Nuevo were missing.

Rescue workers were hampered by the clouds of gas, falling ash and in areas closer to the volcano, flowing lava and hot, falling rocks. Rock ash covered a 450-square mile area around the volcano, the national guard reported, in some areas as much as eight inches thick.

Soviet Allies Aim Forces At Czechs

Crisis Talks Frank

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviets moved a vast three-nation military force toward Czechoslovakia's northern border Tuesday as reports from the critical Czechoslovak-Soviet summit talks gave little room for optimism.

The Soviets announced early Tuesday they were expanding their military exercises into East Germany and Poland and troops from these two hardline communist nations would join in.

STEADY MOVEMENT

Sources in Poland and East Germany reported army units moving steadily south toward the Czech border where the Soviets already have considerable troop strength in position.

It was the first time the Soviets had held joint manoeuvres on allied territories, and with other national armies, outside the framework of the Warsaw Treaty.

NOTHING SHROUD

A Stockholm newspaper said Monday's discussion ended in heated, petty quarrelling.

Other than that, the meeting of the Soviet Communist party politburo and the Czechoslovak party presidium in this bleak border town continued to be shrouded in secrecy.

In the language of communist statements, "comradely frankness" usually means hard talk.

Big Rock Drowns Two Boys

COCOA, Fla. (UPI) — Two young boys were killed Tuesday when a huge boulder crashed onto them as they swam in a small man-made pit filled with water.

George Davis and Tommy Omo, both 13-year-old residents of nearby Port St. John, drowned when the six-by-three foot boulder tumbled down the four-foot-high clay banks of the pit and pinned them below eight feet of water.

LOUD NOISE

"All of a sudden, there was a loud noise and I looked back just in time to see them disappear under the rocks and sand," said Eddie Reeder, 14, who was playing or the shore.

A third youth, George Copeland, 13, scrambled from the water unharmed.

Rebirth of Cities Humphrey Vow

SAN FRANCISCO (LAT) — Vice-President Hubert Humphrey proposed a Marshall Plan Tuesday for rebuilding the U.S. cities. He also suggested building a pilot city to serve as a model for the future.

"Like the original Marshall Plan that rebuilt Europe, this one must rely heavily on self-help, local initiative, co-ordinated planning, private capital," said Humphrey in a speech at a meeting of the Commonwealth Club. (See also Page 3.)

"Much more than the federal chequebook must be involved in any lasting solution to the urban crisis," he added.

He said the plan would include creation of a national urban development bank, financed largely from private funds.

Humphrey said the bank, working through regional subsidiaries, would provide federal underwriting for "unusual risks involved in meeting the hardest and most critical urban problems."

The vice-president also proposed establishment of a national domestic policy council in the White House to direct reorganization of the federal bureaucracy.

Looking ahead to the U.S.'s 200th anniversary in 1976, he proposed that the bicentennial be celebrated by building a "pilot city for a new America."

"This new city would test new ideas in land use, housing, technology and community leadership," said Humphrey.

"It's construction would attract the finest talents in America — from American industry, the states, municipalities and the federal government."

Tots Survive Bush Ordeal

By DAVE STOCKARD

GRAND RAPIDS, Man. (CP) — Indian trackers Tuesday night found two children who survived an astonishing ordeal of six days and five nights lost in desolate northern Manitoba bush.

Jill Sinclair, 8, and her four-year-old brother, Kirby, were alive and in apparently good condition although scratched and bitten by insects.

They were taken from this Lake Winnipeg power centre to the radar station at Gypsumville, 110 miles south on the Winnipeg-Grand Rapids highway, where doctors were to assess their condition and decide whether to transport them to a city hospital.

BEHIND LOC

They were found huddled behind a log in the area of Buffalo Lake, 12 to 15 miles from the spot where they wandered from their parents' root-picking camp last Thursday. The group of Indian and Metis searchers who traced them were confident from the start that footprints first found Sunday would eventually lead them to the wandering tots.

Groups of army searchers, flown in earlier in the day in four plane loads, were working a different area at the time.

UNCLE OVERJOYED

"It was a happy moment when we found them," said Percy Jensen, an uncle of the children who was in the rescue party.

The 19 rescuers took turns carrying the children as they ran the two miles to the nearest bush trail and a waiting vehicle.

Footprints, a string of wool from Kirby's jacket and a strand of Jill's hair helped lead the keen-eyed woodsmen to their swampland resting place.

SCARED BY YELLS

"They looked up and smiled and then crawled back down again," said Jensen.

"We were all so happy we yelled and shouted and we scared them. They cried a lot and then they recognized their uncle, Uncle Cook, and calmed down again."

Mexican Troops Battle Students

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexican troops fired volleys of shots in the air within earshot of tourist landmark and, charging with fixed bayonets, tried to clear the city's streets Tuesday after new outbreaks of violence followed a night of student riots that authorities called communists-inspired.

Troops patrolled the downtown area and truckloads of army troops sped to the scene of the bus burnings.

Students hurled rocks and bottles at riot police and the steel-helmeted force threw them back. At least two buses were burned and other buses, their windows smashed, blocked the streets around the interior ministry building.

The rioting, which was related to charges of brutality by the city's riot police, involved mainly students, 14 to 18 years of age.

Tanks patrolled the downtown area and truckloads of army troops sped to the scene of the bus burnings.

Students who commanded buses painted slogans on them condemning the administration of President Gustavo Diaz

OTTAWA (CP) — After more than a week of mediation talks on non-monetary issues in the postal dispute, the parties have agreed back to the money question, it was reliably reported Tuesday.

Government and union representatives lunched with mediator Judge Rene Lepage for two hours Tuesday afternoon, then adjourned.

They met only briefly Tuesday night and agreed to get together again around 11 a.m. in the judge's 18th-floor hotel suite. There was no comment on the progress of the talks.

The dispute concerns a proposed contract that, under new bargaining legislation, would expire Sept. 30 this year and thus be mainly retrospective.

However, there has been speculation that an agreement covering a longer period possibly could be worked out.

Postal Unions is seeking a flat 75-cent-an-hour increase over a 14-month contract for most employees, and an increase of 95 cents for its lowest-paid members.

The government offered a 15-cent increase in two stages.

Although spokesmen for both the government and unions have been reluctant to divulge information on the progress of the prolonged mediation sessions—the Monday night meeting ended at 3:10 a.m. EDT Tuesday—it is known that the parties are making headway on working conditions.

The dispute concerns a proposed contract that, under new bargaining legislation, would expire Sept. 30 this year and thus be mainly retrospective. However, there has been speculation that an agreement covering a longer period possibly could be worked out.

OTTAWA (CP) — Chances of Prime Minister Trudeau getting away for a pre-season vacation are growing slim.

A source close to Trudeau said Tuesday the prime minister plans to attend the regular cabinet meeting today and "stick close" to Ottawa for the rest of the week.

That would leave him only one more week before he and his cabinet start a series of intensive meetings to square away the legislative program the government will present to Parliament when it resumes regular business, probably about mid-September.

THE KEEF FACTOR

The national postal strike, which has choked off the mails since July 18, is an obvious factor in Trudeau's decision to remain close to Ottawa.

The strike was only into its fourth day when Trudeau left July 21 for his week-long trip across the North.

He said before he left, and repeated after he returned July 28, that he hoped the postal workers and treasury board, which bargained for the government, could settle the strike without parliamentary intervention.

Presumably, similar arrangements could be made if he were to skip away on vacation for a week or so.

FAST TRANSPORT

Trudeau was within reach of Ottawa throughout his northern tour. A fast transport department jet kept close to him throughout so that he could be zipped back to Ottawa in a hurry.

Presumably, similar arrangements could be made if he were to skip away on vacation for a week or so.

Homecoming Plans Excite Paris' Wife

By KAREN MOSER
MONTREAL (CP) — "Dr. Pierre Grondin wants to see me. He wants to discuss my husband's homecoming—and I still have to decorate the bedroom and maybe my daughter's going to take care of Gaetan

"And oh, I can't wait to take him fishing again..." The excited voice belongs to Claire Paris, wife of Canada's second heart transplant patient who may soon come home from the Montreal Heart Institute. The excitement mounted Monday night when Dr. Grondin returned to Montreal from South Africa where he had attended a conference of heart transplant surgeons in Cape Town. It was at the airport that the 42-year-old surgeon hinted Mr. Paris, who received his new heart 33 days ago, may be going home in four weeks.

Dr. Grondin said in a telephone interview Tuesday that Mr. Paris will most likely not remain in hospital for "more than another four weeks." "We are going to look at his home and make possible suggestions to Mrs. Paris as to what should be done to ensure the continued progress of Mr. Paris," said Dr. Grondin. "Then we are going to try to find a job for Mr. Paris, who is an electrical designer, which will allow him to work but not strenuously. In the past he has had to climb ladders or work in
